New Curfew Law Is Proposed Here

Kuvinka Says Law Not Strict

Monessen City Council this morning instructed City Solicitor Frank P. Ezerski Jr. to prepare an ordinance calling for a stricter curfew law for juveniles.

Acting upon a recommendation by Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka, who said the present curfew law is "not strict enough," Council said the ordinance will be aimed at making parents responsible for violations by their children.

Kuvinka suggested a $25 fine or 10 days in jail for parents whose children violate the law.

He also suggested there be two curfew warnings in the new ordinance, one at 9 p.m. for children 13 years and under and the other at 11 p.m. for juveniles 13 to 18 years inclusive.

Survey is Held

He asked for the 11 p.m. curfew because of the many school activities that take place at night for older students.

Kuvinka made his recommendations after taking a survey of other communities having effective curfew laws, he said.

"The only way we can have an effective curfew law is to make parents responsible for any violations by their children. Too many mothers, especially, cover up for their children by not telling fathers about their children violating the curfew.

"When police call up mothers about violations by their children, they invariably say 'don't let my husband know'," the chief told Council.

City Clerk Francis Crum read a letter from the Monessen Parking Authority asking for stricter enforcement of parking regulations in the downtown parking plazas. The Authority said violations have been flagrant.

Mayor Hugo J. Parente instructed Kuvinka to call a meeting of the entire Police Department for Monday at 3 p.m. to discuss the Authority's complaint.

Page Local 1391 sent a letter to Council protesting a "rumor" that a change in parking meter regulations is being contemplated for downtown Monessen. Council had no comment.

Sewer Problem

Director of Streets David Victoria said he will meet with Local 1391 and officials of the American Chain and Cable Co., Inc. Page Division plant this afternoon to discuss the sewer problem at the tunnel entrance to the plant. The City has received complaints that the tunnel becomes flooded "at the least bit of rain" because of sewer difficulties.

Steve Milinovich, who has a beer distributing establishment on Summit Ave., asked Council if "all businesses in the hill district of Monessen have to move downtown" under the proposed zoning ordinance being prepared by the

'Flu' Epidemic Moving on to Other Places

Apparently the "flu-type" epidemic is subsiding in the area around Monessen and moving on to other parts of the Monongahela Valley.

Schools in the Pittsburgh and Uniontown areas report considerable absenteeism but on the local scene everything was getting slowly back to normal.

Although Holy Name grade school was closed yesterday when more than 40 per cent of the student body of 266 was absent, St. Leonard reports classes progressing normally. No report was obtained from St. Hyacinth, the other local parochial school.

At Monessen High School absenteeism was practically normal for this time of the week and the epidemic had apparently subsided, although all athletic contests involving Monessen teams were postponed at the request of the opponents.

Bellmar High School reported 25 absentees, about 25 above the normal trend, but Principal Raymond Barker stated there was nothing to be alarmed over and he saw no evidence of the malady striking there, one of the few valley schools to avoid it thus far.

Rostraver students were reported to have been dismissed to attend special showing of "Ten Commandments" at the Manos Theater, indicating normal conditions there.

Elsewhere in the valley the news was not so good, however, as both Monongahela and Donora high schools reported unusally high absenteeism this week. Monongahela has cancelled its football game with West View and Donora is attempting to postpone its game with Redstone.

Brownsville High School is in the same predicament as Monongahela and Donora.

Sewickley Man Killed in Crash

AMBRIDGE, Pa. (UP)—Ralph Moore, 31, Sewickley, Pa., was killed today in an automobile-truck collision on Big Sewickley Creek Rd., five miles east of here.

Beaver County Coroner Dr. Thomas Todd said a coal truck operated by Major Bonner, Pittsburgh, tried to pass another car and crashed head-on into the Moore vehicle. Moore, Beaver County's 29th traffic fatality of the year, was dead on arrival at a physician's office here.

Ike Hopes Troops Can Be Pulled

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today he is very hopeful that federal troops can be withdrawn from Little Rock's Central High School soon.

He made the statement at his news conference when asked if he agreed with Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.) that the time was "rapidly approaching" when the situation would calm down enough for local officials to handle it.

Eisenhower said he certainly was very hopeful that that would be the case. As soon as local officials say that they have the thing right in their hands, he said, the federal government would have no other function at the school.

The President indicated belief that there would have been no trouble in integrating the school if Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas had not called out the National Guard to prevent it.

Unknown Difference

When asked if he believed that was the case, Eisenhower first said he was being asked to speculate. But he added that integration had started peacefully at other Arkansas schools and said he didn't know of any particular reason why it would have been different at Little Rock if Faubus hadn't intervened.

All but about five minutes of the 33 - minute news conference was devoted to the satellite and missile programs of Russia and the United States.

On that subject, the President:

—Announced that the United States will start firing earth satellites into outer space in December.

—Commented that Russia's artificial moon now circling the earth poses no threat to American security.

The President denied that Russia had made any formal request that Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov visit this country.

Would Consult Allies

Asked if he felt a visit by Zhukov now would be useful, he said that before any such unilateral action was taken, U.S. allies would be consulted. He added that the United States would not take action if the allies thought it would be bad.

The President was serious throughout virtually all of the news conference.

He wore a grey single-breasted suit and vest, a white shirt and dark blue tie. There was a white adhesive tape bandage around the first joint of the third finger of his right hand.

INTERRUPTS FIRE DRILL — Mrs. Kenneth Harrison, Elizabeth, R. D. 3, is shown here entering the emergency entrance at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital last night to interrupt a fire drill being conducted by district fire companies. Mrs. Harrison, by the way, is a new mother this morning, having given birth to a baby girl at 2:10 this morning.

Hospital Fire Drill Called Big Success

Area fire companies last evening carried out a well planned simulated mass evacuation drill at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

Within a few minutes after the first alarm was sounded, more than 250 fire-fighters and a half-million dollars worth of equipment surrounded the hospital grounds.

The first alarm, summoning Lock Four Fire Department in whose area the hospital is located, sounded at 6:25 p.m. Two minutes later all available equipment from this company was in position.

A few minutes later Charleroi arrived, followed by Monessen, Belle Vernon, North Belle Vernon, Donora, Carroll Twp. and Monongahela.

No Evacuation

Monessen, led by Chief W. Roy McShaffrey, had the largest caravan of equipment. Once on the scene, the local firemen shot up ladders, prepared life nets, manned giant spotlights, made first aid equipment available and had gas masks ready.

Meanwhile, other companies were performing similar duties at other points outside the institution.

There was no evacuation of patients.

The companies set up intercommunications systems, using walkie-talkies to direct operations.

North Belle Vernon displayed its powerful high-pressure fog truck while Belle Vernon firemen were busy setting up rescue tactics.

While the drill was going on, Monessen was protected by Rostraver Twp. Fire Department and

Planning Group Discusses Zoning For Five Hours

The City Planning Commission spent about five hours last night wrestling with a propozed zoning ordinance for Monessen, preparatory to putting the measure before City Council.

The Commission had previously conducted two public hearings to explain the ordinance and to sample sentiment among property owners who would be affected. The conference last night weighed the public comments from the hearings and considered a half dozen written petitions from individuals and groups seeking change or modification of the ordinance.

Final action was not taken last night, the Commission indicated, since the meeting had not been opened to the public. An open meeting is scheduled at the City Building Thursday evening, Nov. 7, at which time final public comment will be asked and the Commission hopes then to vote on the ordinance.

City Council will be required to conduct additional hearings on the measure after it is received from the Commission and before it is enacted into local law.

All five members of the Commission attended the conference last night as well as representatives of Community Planning Services, Inc., the City's planning consultant, and City Solicitor Frank Ezerski. The meeting ended shortly after midnight.

West Newton Man Killed by Passenger Train

Michael Cornelia, 80, of West Newton R. D. 1, was killed instantly when struck by a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train near a grade crossing in West Newton yesterday afternoon, Coroner Stephen Yoney reported this morning.

Yoney stated that Cornelius was struck about 20 feet from the crossing at about 2:50 p. m. yesterday. Death was instantaneous from a fractured skull, Yoney stated.

Police Chief Eugene Letterio of West Newton, who was near the scene of the accident when it occurred, informed Yoney that Cornelius had a habit of walking near the tracks with his head down and hands behind his back. Letterio said Cornelius apparently did not hear the train approaching from behind him.

Ike Says Red Moon no Threat To Our Security

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower announced today that the United States will start firing earth satellites into outer space in December.

Eisenhower told his news conference that in his opinion, based on long conferences with American scientists, the Russian satellite now circling the earth poses no threat to American security.

The President said, however, that the rocket which propelled the Russian satellite more than 500 miles above the earth's surface means that Soviet scientists have in their possession a very horrible thrust.

Doubts Satellite Weight

He also seriously questioned the fact that the Russian satellite weighed more than 180 pounds. He said that if this was true it was a source of great astonishment to American scientists.

The President said that in a political sense the Soviet Union by firing the first earth satellite, had possibly gained a world political advantage. But he doubted whether Russia had gained any scientific advantage over the United States.

As for the Russian claim that the Soviet Union had successfully fired an intercontinental ballistic missile, the President said this government did not know the details of the Russian ICBM test and that the measurement of its success was a matter of accuracy on hitting a target.

He said that if the Russians had fired an ICBM and returned it to a specific target area it was undoubtedly a great accomplishment —if done.

Test Vehicle Only

The President told newsmen that the first American satellite to be fired in December would not carry intricate instrumentation but would be sent in outer space as a test vehicle.

He said several similar satellites probably would be fired into space before the United States puts up an artificial moon with complicated instrumentation.

"As to the Soviet satellite," the President said in a prepared statement distributed at his news conference, "we congratulate Soviet scientists upon putting a satellite into orbit."

Later, under questioning, Eisenhower said scientists had long known that it was possible to put a satellite into orbit around the earth, but that it was a different matter to send up a globe with effective instrumentation.

Never Satisfied

He did not feel that the United States development program for missiles was lagging particularly behind the Russians, although he said he was never satisfied.

He emphasized that in this country there was a definite separation between the satellite program and the military development of ballistic missiles.

"The United States satellite program has been designed from its inception for maximum results in scientific research," he said in his statement.

"The rocketry employed by our Naval Research Laboratory for launching our Vanguard has been

Soviet Satellite Going Strong; Details Released

LONDON (UP)—The Soviet Union opened a double - barrelled diplomatic offensive today for "peaceful co - existence" and general disarmament and said its sucessful satellite was the "best propagandist" for a course.

Radio signals from the artificial satellite perked up again today and British scientists who Tuesday night predicted its fall "within a matter of hours" reversed themselves and said it was still going strong.

Moscow also disclosed new details about the satellite and its launching. It said three objects actually were orbiting the earth—the aluminum-sheathed satellite, the rocket which sent it into space, and the protective cone which shielded the satellite.

How It Was Done

The official Communist organ Pravda disclosed that the satellite was carried aloft by a three-stage rocket which started off vertically and then leveled off on a course parallel with the surface of the earth. The third stage of the rocket reached outer space.

It said the satellite eventually would fall into the earth's atmosphere and die the death of a meteor. But even if it fell now the Soviet has achieved a momentous propaganda victory and one that has led the United States to reappraise its entire disarmament policy and its rocket missile building program.

Washington dispatches said President Eisenhower was deeply concerned with the Soviet achievement despite an outward air of calm, and was holding almost constant conferences with his military and scientific advisers.

The State Department already has reversed itself on the question of disarmament. Tuesday night it offered to discuss control of outer space and missiles with Russia without waiting for an overall disarmament agreement. A few hours earlier it said no to such a proposal.

Pravda called for peaceful coexistence in all fields and said the satellite which is revolving round our planet where both socialist

Stieska Plans All-out Fight Against Parente in November

John R. Stieska, local dúrggist, today "proudly accepted" the Republican nomination for mayor of Monessen which the state Supreme Court awarded him Monday in a precedent-setting decision.

Stieska said he intends to "fight down to the wire" to beat Mayor Hugo J. Parente, who won the Democratic nomination in their primary contest last May.

Parente and Stieska, both registered Democrats, also contested for the GOP nomination with write-in and sticker votes since no Republican filed for any local offices in Monessen this year.

It was the GOP contest which produced a legal battle which settled finally a disputed question in Pennsylvania as to the validity of write-in votes cast on voting machines. Stieska won when the Supreme Court ruled that election boards should cumulate write-ins regardless of how the candidate's name is spelled by the voters.

Stieska conferred here yesterday with Smith McKee Jr., Republican minority commissioner of Westmoreland County who is acting as coordinator of the GOP county campaign.

Wayne A. Donahue, Republican candidate for district attorney, who helped fight the legal battle which gave Stieska the nomination, also participated in the talk.

None of the three had anything to say for publication about the meeting. But Stieska this morning issued a long fighting statement accepting the nomination and promising a vigorous campaign against what he calls "political degeneration" in Monessen.

Parente yesterday announced that local Democrats had prepared plans in event the Supreme Court ruled against him. That plan, he said, would now be put into operation. He gave no details.

Following is the text of Stieska's statement:

"I proudly accept the Republican nomination for mayor of Monessen.

"I accept it because I feel it is my sincere duty both as an American citizen and a resident of Monessen to do all I can to keep alive the two-party system in Monessen, the county and the state. I also feel it is the duty of every voter to do the same.

"It is only when we have a strong minority party that we have the best government everywhere. Whenever and wherever the two-party system ceases to function we have no Republican and no Democratic party but just a corrupt and arrogant political

Pallone Believes 'Flu' Has Run Its Course

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of public schools, last night informed the Monessen School Board that he believes the "influenza-type" epidemic that hit the district last week has run its course and "everything is getting back to normal."

At last night's brief meeting, Dr. Pallone said the suspension of classes at the schools last week because of heavy absenteeism "certainly seems to have resulted in helping to curb this sickness."

"I'm glad it's over with-I hope," the superintendent stated.

He said attendance in the higher grades is back to normal and the number of absentees in the lower grades is decreasing.

He offered his appreciation to the board, The Daily Independent, and City police and officials for "your splendid cooperation during this situation."

Board President John Lancas, in turn, congratulated Dr. Pallone "for the fine manner in which you handled the situation."

In other business, the board rejected a request from radio station WMCK, McKeesport, asking the Monessen School District to lift its $50 per game broadcast fee. The station asked for permission to broadcast games from Memorial Stadium free of charge. The board voted to continue its present policy.

Miriam Johnson, an instructor, was granted permission to attend the Pennsylvania Association of Student Councils meeting at Kennett Square near Philadelphia Oct. 10-12. Another instructor, Tynne Hanninen, was authorized to represent the district at an educational conference in Harrisburg Oct. 24-26.

A lengthy list of affidavits of guardianship for pupils whose parents live outside the school district was approved.

Roscoe Man Flees From Penitentiary

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (UP)—State police and Rockview Penitentiary guards searched today for John W. Hess, 22, of Roscoe, Washington County, who escaped while working at the prison nursery.

Hess fled Tuesday when a work detail, helping load trees at the nursery, was ordered to take shelter in a building during a heavy rain.

Hess was sentenced from Washington County to 3 to 6 years for robbery and larceny. He was confined to the minimum security prison in August.

machine which represents only its selfish interests.

"Such is the state of affairs in Monessen today. In Monessen we have no Republican party and no Democratic party. All we have is a glorified group of mediocrities who, like the Politburo in Russia, make up a list of names, hand-picked by themselves, and tell the people of Monessen, "Here is the ticket—you are free to vote for anyone on the ticket selected by us.'

"Politically Monessen has reached the bottom of political degeneration.

Cites 'Scandals'

"In the last eight years the political history of Monessen under the so-called leadership of Mayor Parente has been one of rackets, scandals, shameful publicity, stolen elections, and jail sentences.

"It is high time that the people of Monessen disillusion themselves about our Mayor. He is not indispensable, he is not honorable and he is not responsible for the material progress of the City as he claims. Our local prosperity is due to our industries, which provide jobs with good pay, and the personal sacrifices of our good people to build beautiful homes.

"Whatever civic work has been done is due to the wage-income tax, which has given the City administration more money than it has brains to spend intelligently. Yet when the wage-income tax ordinance came up for a vote in 1949 four members of our present City Council, including the Mayor, either voted against it or campaigned against it.

"Were these gentlemen who are now bragging so much thinking of the 'City Ahead' at the time when they voted or campaigned against the wage-income tax or were they thinking of their political hides and how to get on the public payroll? Were they men of short vision or plain cowards that would not risk their political future for the good of the City? If it had been left to them in 1949 Monessen today would still be a mudhole. Enough of this hypo and ballyhoo.

How Are Taxes Spent?

"The question today is not how much the Mayor has done but are we getting our money's worth? We give tax-hungry City Hall over $600,000 a year in real estate and wage-income taxes alone. Is this money going to pay mostly for fictitious jobs for political friends or for service and improvements for the people of Monessen who pay the taxes? It is only by having a two-party system in our local government that these questions can be answered.

"It is high time that so called leaders of Parente's type should be eliminated. I am confident the people shall repudiate him this coming election just as he was repudiated in his efforts to monopolize both nominations. In the name of the Democratic party he operates for his own selfish ambitions. He is too tied up with other interests to do a good job for the City.

"The City election is not a one-party fight or any party fight. Vote for men and not party.

"I shall welcome all volunteer helpers in this fight for good government and shall continue to fight down to the wire in order to eliminate Parente from the political scene."

deliberately separated from our ballistic missile efforts in order, first, to accent the scientific purposes of the satellite and, second, to avoid interference with top priority missile programs."

The President said it would have been possible to have launched an orbiting American satellite before now by merging scientific effort with military programs. But, he added, this would have been detrimental to scientific goals and military progress.

"Our satellite program has never been conducted as a race with other nations," he said. "Rather, it has been carefully scheduled as part of the scientific work of the international geophysical year."

The President, under questioning, said that the relationship between the Russian satellite and American national security did not raise his apprehensions one iota.

The President was openly concerned, however, about the potential in the Russian rocket advance as reflected in the vehicle which launched the satellite.

This, he said, showed that the Russian scientists have a very horrible thrust in their possession in the rocketry involved in launching their satellite.

The President's meeting with reporters was largely dominated by the subject of the Russian satellite and the comparable American position.

Faubus Under Fire to Put Up or Shut Up

LITTL EROCK, Ark. (UP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus, under fire to put up or shut up, faced close questioning today on his charge that troops enforcing integration at Central High School have invaded the privacy of girls' dressing rooms.

Faubus scheduled a news conference today, but gave no hint of what he would discuss in his first full scale meeting with the press since making his charge.

However, reporters were certain to ask for clarification of a letter in which he said he had received complaints that paratroopers had accompanied Negro girl students into the dressing rooms.

The Faubus letter, to the general commanding the troops at Little Rock, was denounced by the White House as untrue and vulgar. School and Army officials also denied the Faubus charges.

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker demanded Tuesday that the governor back up his statement with proof.

Donora Zinc Works Closing on Schedule

Plans to discontinue the smelting of zinc at U. S. Steel's American Steel and Wire Division plant at Donora on or about Nov. 1, as announced last July, are proceeding as scheduled, it was revealed today.

The tentative schedule for curtailment of certain facilities was announced by a company spokesman.

In the roasting department the No. 5 Herreshoff roaster will continue in operations until the latter part of this month when the ore supply will be depleted.

The pottery department produced its last retorts during August and the manufacture of condensers was completed Sept. 27. Smelting furnaces and the gross plant will continue operations until Nov. 1, at which time a sizeable inventory of slab zinc will be available at Donora.

The sulphuric acid plant, which will remain in operation, is scheduled to have a new Glover tower made of masonry to replace the old No. 2 lead tower already taken out of service. Work on the new tower, which will have a greater capacity, has begun. Two of the new welded storage tanks have been completed and plans are well along for the replacement of two additional tanks in the sulphuric acid plant before the end of the year.

Other preparations for an orderly shutdown of the zinc works are proceeding as outlined in the detailed advanced preparations announced in July, it was said.

The spokesman for the plant, which employs about 500, said all employes have been informed of the various shutdown benefits available to them under division policy and labor agreement provisions.

Ezerski said the Commission will hold a public meeting Nov. 8 to discuss the ordinance.

Road Contractor Says Union Business Agents Got $200 from Him

Two union business agents face continued questioning today into extortion charges made by a former contractor on a Belle Vernon district road job.

William B. Spencer and William Wiggins, owner of the Black Top Paving Co., in Washington, Pa., testified yesterday in federal court in Pittsburgh.

The trial of Thomas Pecora, 48, and Dante Martire, 41, union business agents charged with extorting $200 from the paving firm, got under way Monday before Judge Herbert P. Sorg.

Pecora and Martire are agents of Local 1058, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union. Nicholas A. Stirone, recently convicted of extortion, is president of the union. He has filed for a new trial.

Wiggins told of several visits by Pecora to the work site on Route 71, near Belle Vernon, in 1951.

At Work Site

"He asked us to use a checkoff system to collect the dues and I told him we didn't want to bother with that," Wiggins said.

"Pecora said, 'Well then, I'll have to be around to collect it and if you want to get rid of me you ought to have a checkoff'," Wiggins added.

Wiggins said he saw Martire and Pecora together late in October of 1951 when they arrived on the work site in a chauffeur driven sedan.

"They told me they wanted to talk to me and suggested we do it over a cup of coffee at Sweeney's," Wiggins said.

They told me it was customary in the trade to pay them one per cent of the contract, but I told them I wouldn't do that and couldn't," he continued.

"They said, 'you're pretty new in the business' and lowered the amount from $3,000 to $2,000," Wiggins added.

"They said I could hire and fire whom I pleased and that there wouldn't be any trouble on the job. And I said: "We aren't having any trouble now." Wiggins continued.

Following an interruption at which Defense Counsel Joseph Schuchert's objections were overruled, Wiggins continued.

"He said, (meaning Pecora), 'The men can get radical awful fast.' " Wiggins said.

Wiggins said that in December of 1951 he received a phone call from Pecora.

" 'I'm coming out to see you about that same matter—I want you to get ready,' ", he said Pecora told him.

Wiggins testified that two or three days later he was visited by Pecora and Martire.

"They said, "What have you got for us" and I took ten $20 bills and laid them on the desk," said Wiggins.

"Martire grabbed the money, swore and said, " 'How cheap can you get?' " concluded Wiggins.

and capitalist countries are situated."

There were reassuring words from some American scientists on the U. S. rocket research program. But some of the military scientists attending the World Astronautical Congress in Barcelona, Spain, let it be known they would rush home to press for an all-out effort to beat Russia to manned space flight.

The American scientists said nothing could prevent the Russians from being the first to land an object on the moon and added:

"We must leapfrog the Russians beyond the moon to manned space flight. The war for the minds of the world is the most important war we will ever fight. We have lost, through the Soviet satellite, more people than ever before."

More encouraging words came from Dr. Paul E. Klopsteg, associate director of research of the National Science Foundation. He said in Washington the United States is leading or abreast of other nations in many fields of basic research, including nuclear physics.

He was backed by Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) who said in Kansas City, Mo., that someone in the Pentagon "goofed" in connection with satellite development and predicted "the artificial moon may utterly change concepts of warfare."

Criticism of the program and the long - simmering inter-service squabble broke out in Barcelona where U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Holger Toftoy and Brig. Gen. John Barclay said the Army could have launched a satellite as far back as 1955 if the Navy had not interfered with the project.

Authority Asks Enforcement at Parking Plazas

A formal protest on the matter of enforcement at the two downtown parking plazas was lodged with City Council this morning by the Monessen Parking Authority.

A spot check of the plazas by Authority members last month revealed an average of approximately 30 per cent violators.

"If these 30 per cent were paying their way the plazas could be put on a paying basis almost immediately," Joseph Shoemaker, Authority secretary said.

The revenue from the plazas now is averaging about $1,200 per month, Shoemaker said, and if we were getting the additional revenue from these violators, the added money could help us acquire the necessary $1,800 needed to put the plazas on a paying basis.

The spot check, which was carried out on six separate days, showed that of 225 cars parked on the upper and lower levels, there were 70 violators.

Revenue Climbing

"The percentage was even greater on the middle level," Shoemaker said, "but this level is used by monthly-lease parkers as well, making it a little difficult to get a true picture."

Stephen Sterbak, Authority treasurer, reported that revenue from the plazas is climbing. In September, $1113.24 was collected, not counting tokens, of which 2,303 were collected at 5 cents each.

"This is one of our biggest months yet," Authority Chairman Harold B. Cramer said.

"It looks as if the lots are going to be self sustaining long before we thought," Cramer said.

When the plazas went into operation late last year, it was predicted that it would take at least two years before the anticipated monthly revenue would be realized.

Under the lease-back arrangement under which the plazas are operating, the Authority works as a manager for the City with the City's finances standing behind all bond payments.

All monies collected at the plazas go into the City treasury. Approximately $1,800 monthly is needed to cover bond payments, which total $21,650 yearly, payable in two installments.

Payment Is Due

The first of these payments, which go toward the $340,000 bond issue, came due the first of this month.

Total collections since the plazas started operating last December, show approximately $9,000.

Michael Milinovich, recently-hired auditor, was present and explained that he is preparing a financial report to be submitted to the bond holders.

A representative of Hale Electric Co., Pittsburgh, was also present and discussed the lighting system at the plazas and recommended a few changes which were taken under consideration.

Five Wrecking Trucks Needed To Free Wreck

Five wrecking trucks worked for 3½ hours last night to extricate a tractor - trailer carrying 36,000 pounds of steel wire, from a Donora apartment building where it had ended after a runaway trip down Second St., in Donora.

Speeding out of control about 10 o'clock last night when the brakes failed the huge truck "ran over" an automobile owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Springer, completely demolishing it before crashing into the apartment building at Second St. and Meldon Ave.

The driver of the truck, Edward Smith, 36, of Cleveland, Ohio was in "good" condition at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital this morning where he was taken suffering from shock and a possible back injury.

Donora police said Smith mistook steep Second St. for Route 88 as he was driving from the Pittsburgh Steel Co. plant here, to Pittsburgh. After the brakes let go on the hill, Smith lost control of the ri He sounded a horn warning as he sped along, picking up speed, police said.

Mrs. Emma Chadwick, an occupant of the apartment into which the rig crashed, had left moments before the accident to purchase a newspaper, police reported.

Five valley wrecking trucks, from Donora, Webster and New Eagle garages worked from 10:05 last night until 1:30 in removing the heavy truck from the apartment building.

George Buck, proprietor of Buck's Garage, Webster, said that he "had been in the wrecking business for years but had never seen a car so completely demolished as the Springer automobile," which the tractor-trailer smashed on its runaway ride.

Some Documents Missing from Teamster Records

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Rackets Committee said today union officials conceded some documents are missing from the Teamster Union's convention records they promised to deliver after snatching them from an incinerator.

Teamster official Joseph Konowe of New York was expected to deliver the remaining records to chief counsel Robert F. Kennedy today under a committee subpena.

Kennedy said union leaders told him, however, that some of the records are "definitely missing."

New Dial Area Will Get Practice Session

Bell Telephone operators next week will begin calling telephone customers in the Fairhope-Arnold City section of the Belle Vernon exchange whose telephones will be served by the new Gypsy dial central office on and after Sunday, Oct. 20, J. Lawrence Buchanan, district manager, announced today.

The purpose of the individual calls will be to remind customers of the new type of telephone service to be furnished and to offer any necessary instructions in the proper methods of making calls, Buchanan said.

The new Gypsy office, a mobile dial telephone exchange housed in a semi-trailer, will be placed in operation at 3:01 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 20, and will serve an estimated 300 customers in the area. It will ease the telephone traffic load now handled by the Belle Vernon office and will provide for estimated growth until the entire Belle Vernon exchange is converted to dial operation in 1959.

Some Duplication

"Only telephones with Gypsy numbers will be dial-operated," Buchanan said. "All other Belle Vernon telephones and telephones on multi-party lines and coin-operated telephones will continue to be manually-operated as at present."

He pointed out that some duplication of numbers will occur among telephones served by the Gypsy and the Belle Vernon office. For example, there may be a Gypsy 2552 and a Belle Vernon 2552.

"Both Gypsy and Belle Vernon numbers will be listed in the new directory to be delivered before the change," the manager stated. "The information pages of the new directory will contain instructions for making all calls."

When the new Gypsy office goes into operation, telephone customers using manual telephones will place all calls through the operator as at present. It will be necessary to specify whether a Gypsy or a Belle Vernon number is being called.

Customers using Gypsy telephones will simply dial the four figures of the listed number to reach another Gypsy telephone. To call a Belle Vernon number from a Gypsy telephone, the caller will first dial the code figure "9" and then give the desired Belle Vernon number to the operator. All other calls from Gypsy telephones will be placed through the operator.

THERE is something of the public-be-damned and might-makes-right insolence in the refusal of the Democratic judicial candidates in Westmoreland County—and of those judges who are not candidates as well — to take public notice of one of the key issues of the current campaign, namely the immersion of the courts in partisan politics.

It is undoubtedly true that a registration majority of more than 50,000 gives the Democratic strategists considerable flexibility. Evidently they have decided that it is not necessary for them to talk about the specifics of conditions in Westmoreland County for which they are largely responsible. All that's necessary, they seem to feel, is to stick together, mouth the ancient slogans of the New Deal, plug the straight ticket, ignore the opposition and coast to certain victory on Nov. 5.

And it could work out that way, too. It has done so at times in the past.

BUT the weakness of this strategy is that it presupposes the existence of a great mass of voters of low intelligence, people who don't care what kind of judges sit in the courts or how much partisan politics they play. These voters, it's assumed, don't want to hear serious discussion of pertinent questions, including the personal qualifications of candidates.

All they require, it's apparently felt, is some sophomoric whoopla about the "straight ticket" and on election day, they will march to the polls like senseless robots and obediently swallow the whole dose that the professional politicians have prepared for them.

This is a risky game, that 50,000 majority notwithstanding. More than once in recent years great numbers of these supposed robots have agreed at the dose that was handed to them.

They gagged four years ago, for instance, when the present district attorney, Alexander Sculco, ran for reelection on as miserable a record of non-performance of duty as any public official ever had. He had a 50,000 majority, too. But on election day it shrunk to about 700. And the machine had to resort to flagrant cheating, for which some of its stooges went to jail, to pull Sculco through.

Now they are trying to make a judge out of this do-nothing district attorney. And they think all that's necessary to do it is to go through the motions of a silly campaign, say nothing that means anything to an intelligent citizen and count on the robots—plus some more cheating if that's necessary — to perform as planned on election day.

WILL it work? Does a 50,000 registration majority excuse a political organization and its candidates from discussing the election issues with the people? And does it give the bosses the automatic right to "promote" public officials who have failed in their responsibilities?

The answers are in the hands of the adult citizens of Westmoreland County.

The Next Tactics

THE PROPAGANDA effusions from Moscow, chiefly by Khrushchev, since the earth satellite was launched leave little doubt as to the Kremlin's next tactics in the cold war. We can expect to be bombarded with threats, and they will be very thinly veiled.

"We do not want to misuse our superiority," says Mr. K. But watch out—your bombers are no good now. Our satellites and missiles have put us in the driver's seat.

It would be wrong, of course, not to take these threats seriously. We can be in no doubt whatever that when Mr. K. is actually in the driver's seat, that will be the end of any world worth living in for free human beings.

But we have a secret weapon, too, even though we don't have a satellite in space as yet. Our weapon is the yearning of mankind to be free, and Mr. K. has good reason to fear it. It has cut down men just like him before, and almost surely it will do so indefinitely.

It is doubtful that the free world can be scared into collapse by the satellite. The satellite's chief interest for us is scientific. And while Khrushchev is shaking it under our noses is a good time to stiffen our spines and remember what lies between us and him.

The space age may have arrived just in time. Man may have someplace to go if he shoots up the world with his big firecrackers.

"Yes men"—and "yes women", too—should be plentiful in Monessen on Nov. 5 when the city votes on a bond issue to build a new municipal library.

Merry-Go-Round—

Hassle in Pentagon Delayed U. S.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The brass hats aren't going to admit it, but the United States probably would have beat Soviet Russia in launching the earth satellite if it hadn't been for a military hassle inside the Pentagon similar to that which resulted in the court-martialing of Col. John Nickerson.

Mr. Pearson

Added to this inter-service row were the retarding factors of a curtailed budget plus the fact that McCarthy-type investigations discouraged scientists from working for the government.

Six weeks ago, on Aug. 31, this column flatly reported: "Russia will launch the artificial satellite ahead of us. This may be shot into space as early as September 17, the 100th anniversary of Konstantin Tsiolkovsky's birth. Tsiolkovsky has been publicized in Russia as 'father of space flights.'"

Close to Target Date

Actually, the Russians came very close to their Sept. 17 target. They were 17 days late. On Sept. 17, being not quite ready, they made an announcement that it would be launched soon. It went into the air Oct. 4.

It was announced at the White House that we were in no race with Russia. This, however, is just not true. Actually we were in a desperate race. Both the Defense Department and the White House fully appreciated the tremendous psychological advantage of getting a satellite into the air first, and we had set as our target date either July, August or September of this year.

However, the Eisenhower administration, knowing that of late we were lagging badly behind Russia, deliberately covered up the facts. This column reported on Aug. 31: "Our top officials have known for three months that Russia has successfully fired an intercontinental missile about 4,500 miles from Kolguev Island in the Arctic to the Sea of Okhotsk in the Northwest Pacific."

Today, following the Russian satellite launching, officials now admit that Russia must have had a successful ICBM in order to launch it.

Army vs. Navy

Here is the backstage Pentagon hassle which helped us to lose out to Russia regarding man's first break with the planet earth.

In 1954, the U. S. Army at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., was working on "Project Orbiter" under the direction of Dr. Fred Singer of the University of Maryland. The actual name of Army's earth satellite was "Minimum Orbital Unmanned Satellites of Earth," or "MOUSE."

The Army was making excellent progress when Pentagon politics intervened, and the project was turned over to the Navy. The MOUSE was largely discarded and the Navy began working on its own "Vanguard." New designs were drawn up.

Meanwhile, Dr. Singer's discarded MOUSE design was pretty much made public for anyone to read about — including the Russians. Life magazine and various scientific journals carried blueprints. The satellite was not considered a military weapon.

Ironically, as the Russian satellite zoomed across the United States bringing world kudos to Soviet science, American scientists say it is a virtual carbon copy of our discarded MOUSE, except much larger.

Whether the Russians copied it is not known. But certainly they had every opportunity to, merely by buying U. S. magazines.

NOTE — Reason for switching the satellite from the Army at Redstone to the Navy was partly the feeling that the Army leaned too heavily on German scientists; second, the fact that industry has little control over the Army's scientific operations. It was General Motors — Bell Telephone — Douglas Aircraft, according to Colonel Nickerson, that took the intermediate range missile out of the Army's hands at Redstone.

Harvest Moon

From Hanover—

Report on the 'New' Germany

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

HANOVER, Germany — You have to see this throbbing, thriving, upthrusting West Germany in order to believe it.

Handsome new buildings go up almost while you turn your head — the most modernly appointed hotels even in the smaller cities, huge stores, large office buildings with the most imaginative use of glass walks and stairways (very unmilitary) and 4,500,000 new housing units since 1949.

Mr. Drummond

The great network of autobahns are today snarled with long traffic jams which jar the nerves of many a German — and foreigner — but which reflect improving wages and testify to the fact that already Germany is producing more automobiles each year than any country except the United States.

These are some of the visible signs of the tremendous resurgence, the breath-taking restoration which postwar Germany has won for itself largely through its own efforts. Here is a nation whose workers and farmers, industrial proprietors and political leaders have joined to lift it from the physical prostration and moral obliquy inflicted through Hitler. There are three aspects of this astounding recovery which seem most impressive to me.

The Moral Recovery — Chancellor Adenauer's personal and political leadership — a leadership of rectitude and honor — has done more than anything else to regain for the German nation and the German people the increasing respect of the civilized world. West Germany has recovered its sovereignty, is a valued ally and an equal partner with the nations of the free world.

What seems to me especially significant is that the Chancellor has never permitted the German people to forget the awful offenses against mankind which were committed in their name and to a large degree with their consent by Hitler. Night after night during the election campaign Dr. Adenauer candidly reminded his audiences of the grievous errors of the past for which they had to share responsibility and of the sunlight of substantial approval, moral and political, which the world has accorded the German people during the past eight years.

The Adenauer government has also taken concrete steps to give substance to its words. In a remarkable moving speech — a speech of genuine atonement — in which he said that no physical restitution could compensate for Germany's past crimes against the Jews — the Chancellor persuaded the Bundestag to make the symbolic payment of $750,000,000 to Israel.

The Political Recovery — Eight years of good democratic government after World War II cannot possibly remove all the doubts about what the Germans would do in a crisis or under the lash of emotional leadership any more than eight years of democratic government after World War I.

There remain anxieties and reservations about the peaceful stability of the German people, but those reservations are being progressively dissolved and what went wrong under the Weimar Republic is going right in Germany today. There has been no such hideous currency devaluation as in the early twenties. The mark is one of the world's four strongest currencies. Inflation is substantially in hand. Employment is high and the German democracy is stronger, more stable, more competent than at any time in the past. For the first time Germany has the beginnings of a two-party political system. The splinter parties, mostly extremist — from which confusion the Weimar Republic fell to pieces — were extinguished last month by the German voters for lack of support.

Many wonder with concern what the German people would do if struck by anything approaching a serious depression — the kind of depression which helped bring on Hitler. But thus far Germany's political recovery has been good and the outlook is auspicious.

The Economic Recovery — The fact is that there is nothing that looks like depression here in the visible future; quite the opposite. Germany is working its head off and it is paying handsome dividends. It is now producing more steel and coal than any nation except the United States and the Soviet Union. Its export trade is booming and today it is the third biggest trading nation in the world exceeded only by America and Britain.

Wage increases have more than exceeded increased costs — wages up 60 per cent since 1950 and prices up less than 20 per cent. There is virtually no unemployment despite the fact that the German economy has assimilated 11,000,000 German refugees since the end of the war, assimilated them so successfully and so productively than the once class-conscious "refugee party" passed out of existence at the polls last month.

There is no doubt that the German worker has contributed incalculably to German recovery. He is a hard worker, perhaps the the hardest worker anywhere today. He is not strike-happy, certainly not in prosperous times like these. One measure of the difference between Germany and Britain today is that Germany has lost no more working days due to strikes during the last seven years than Britain has lost during the last seven months.

Outside the United States, Germany is today the most prosperous nation in the world. I am sure that one reason is that it is an oasis of free enterprise and competition in a sea of semi-socialism.

At the White House—

Ike and the Press

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UP)—Backstairs at the White House:

This is the end of National Newspaper Week during which President Eisenhower has called on the country to "honor the journalists of our land who daily supply us with many of the facts and opinions which form the basis of our decisions."

Reading these words and watching the smooth, courteous manner in which Eisenhower conducts his own press conferences, it is difficult to realize that this is the same man who only five years ago had severe misgivings about relations with reporters in general.

When the President exchanges informal remarks with reporters on the golf course about the state of his game, it is difficult to realize that this is the man who five years ago did not want to hold regular press conferences as President.

The close working relationship between Press Secretary James C. Hagerty and other members of the President's staff and the White House reporters and photographers makes it almost unbelievable to recall that in late 1952 and early 1953, the President was listening to advisers who advocated moving the press corps completely out of the White House.

At least two of Eisenhower's top-ranking staff members wanted the traditional White House press room abolished and turned into office space. Other advisers at the start of the Eisenhower administration wanted the President to bar reporters from interviewing presidential visitors.

"Why can't the world be nice?"

Quotes from The News

By UNITED PRESS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Navy scientist N. Whitney Matthews, on the prospective launching of an American satellite:

"We have tested several kinds of satellites extensively. Several of these, when subjected to tests of vibration, vacuum and other severe shocks far greater than anticipated in the actual launching, withstood the tests successfully."

MILWAUKEE — Brave pitcher Lew Burdette, on his second victory over the New York Yankees:

"Monday's win over the Yankees wasn't as much of a novelty as that first one but don't go getting the idea I was bored."

SEATTLE, Wash. — Charles S. Burdell, attorney for retiring teamsters president Dave Beck and his son, Dave Jr., in successfully requesting continuances of their grand larceny trials:

"A trial at this time would necessarily be conducted in a feeling of extreme bitterness and hostility toward both defendants."

Gomulka Regime Faces Hard Test in Poland

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Wladyslaw Gomulka is undergoing a severe new test of his strength in his attempt to rule Poland as a semi-independent Communist leader.

The rioting which broke out in Warsaw last Thursday was started by students in protest against the supression of a newspaper which had consistently accused Gomulka of subservience to Soviet Russia.

Mr. McCann

Over the week end, young hoodlums took the leading part in the riots. But the students continued to demand that the ban on their weekly newspaper Pro Prosty (Plain Speaking) be removed.

So far, Gomulka's civil militiamen who constitute the main police force have been able to break up all disorderly assemblies without any serious bloodshed.

But where they started out by using truncheons and tear gas, they are now carrying rifles.

Big Danger Looms

The question is whether the rioting can be confined to its present limits. The big danger is that industrial workers might decide to start strikes to back up their own demands for greater freedom and higher pay.

While Gomulka is facing this situation, he is still under attack by "Stalinist" members of his Communist Party who do not like his independent attitude and accuse him of leading Poland back toward capitalism.

Soviet Russia probably is watching the Warsaw situation with as much interest as is Gomulka.

Gomulka is no pin-up boy in Moscow. His election as first secretary of the Communist Party last October 21, after imprisonment as a rebel, was a big defeat for Russian Communism. The only kind of Communist that Russia likes is one who follows the Moscow party line.

Possible Russian Intervention

If Gomulka lost control of the situation because of anti-government riots, it is certain that Russia would have to intervene as it did in Hungary and crush opposition by brutal force.

But the revulsion against the Hungarian intervention throughout the world, not only in Western countries but in the "neutralist" ones and in Communist parties themselves must be fresh in Kremlin minds.

For that reason, it is likely that Soviet Russia leaders will be glad if Gomulka can keep control of things.

It is one of the strange angles of the present situation that the Roman Catholic Church in Poland, despite its detestation of everything that Communism represents, has supported Gomulka ever since he was restored as Communist leader and Poland's real ruler.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Roman Catholic primate of Poland, called for support of Gomulka in the elections he called after his victory in establishing himself as at least semi-independent of Moscow rule.

On Sunday, Wyszynski again came out in Gomulka's support.

In a sermon marking the opening of the academic year, Wyszynski said to students:

"I can understand your yearning for freedom of speech and thought. But you should respect what you have."

He also told the students that they must understand that "our country is in a particularly difficult situation."

The Woman's View—

Queen's Visit to Help Coat of Arms Business

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—It's been a long time since knighthood was in flower, but the coat of arms business still thrives.

"It'll have another boom when Queen Elizabeth gets here, said Mrs. Mary E. R. Mulford, a bright-eyed little woman who for 40 years has studied and painted heraldic insignia. "The British are great for trappings . . . there was a lot of new interest in coats of arms during the coronation."

Gay Pauley

If you're going through life without a coat of arms and figure some ancestor belonged to a medieval "400," Mrs. Mulford is the person to see. She will do the genealogical research and, if she finds you rate a coat of arms, she will paint one for you. Some of her works will be displayed at the New York Antiques Fair Oct. 14-19.

"I research and paint about 150 a year," she said. "It's a lovely occupation for an old lady."

Coats of arms are suitable for framing and hanging on the wall and frequently are reproduced on seal rings, on personal stationery, or on business cards.

Originally, only knights and peers were entitled to the insignia.

Date to Middle Ages

Mrs. Mulford, a widow in her 50's, said coats of arms began with the Middle Ages, date at least as far back as William the Conqueror. This, she explained, was before reading and writing were common achievements and knights in tournaments needed some way to identify themselves. It helped to know which knight was on your side.

Knights painted pictures on their shields, and on the cloth which went over their armor—hence the term, coat of arms.

Designs at first were simple, maybe an animal. But they became more elaborate through the centuries with stripes, crescents, bars, even floral decorations added. Our flag originated from George Washington's coat of arms she said. It featured stars and bars.

"England started keeping heraldic records in the 12th Century, so it's easy to trace names of English origin," she said. Now the College of Heralds, established around 1460, registers each English insignia and controls the issue of new coats.

Coats of arms also came from Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, and from continental countries including France, Italy, Germany, Spain and Switzerland.

Started at Home

Mrs. Mulford became interested in heraldry from the two coats of arms which hung in her own home when she was a girl in Philadelphia. One represented her mother's side of the family, from Switzerland; the other, her father's branch and a great-great grandparent who was minister to Germany's Frederick, the Great.

"I started making copies for other members of the family, someone waved money in front of my nose and offered to pay me for tracing their lineage, and I was in business," she said. She now works with James A. Watson, an antiques dealer and heraldry expert also. He has some 6,000 prints of coats of arms and a vast library on the subject.

Why do people want to brag about their ancestors?

"It isn't bragging," she said proudly. "It is part of their just heritage."

Pauline M. Turanin, Donora Man Wed

United in marriage at St. Mary Greek Catholic Church of Monessen were Pauline Marie Turanin and Joseph Charles Syrko Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Turanin Sr. of 981 Donner Ave., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Joseph Syrko Sr. of 323 Fifth St., Donora and the late Joseph Syrko Sr.

The Rev. Andrew Parvensky officiated at the double ring ceremony and responses were sung by the church choir directed by William Evancho. Sophie Evancho and William Evancho were soloists. The rites were solemnized on Sept. 22, at 2 p.m.

Vases of white pompons and ferns decorated the church altar. White crash lined the church aisle and white satin bows marked the family pews. During the ceremony the bride presented a bouquet of white lilies tied with a blue ribbon before the altar of the Blessed Mother.

Wears Chantilly

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of imported white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over slipper satin. It was styled with a fitted bodice of lace, a sabrina neckline trimmed in crystal sequins and pearls, and long pointed sleeves accented with pleated tulle ruffles. A row of tiny buttons trimmed the back of the bodice. The full bouffant skirt was fashioned in tiers of lace and tulle. The front of the skirt was of tulle with panels of lace appliqued with sequins. The back formed a full court train. A coronation crown of pearls, rhinestones and crystal sequins held her fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade of white spider mums centered with a purple throated white orchid with satin streamers. The bouquet was fashioned by a personal friend, Marge Rozycki. For jewelry the bride wore a gold cross, gift of the groom.

Vera Louise Markinac of Donora, niece of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Pauline Koval of Roscoe, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Both wore identically styled gowns of coral nylon chiffon over taffeta. They were floor length with a sleeveless fitted bodice, sabrina neckline and flyaway panels in the back. The skirts were bouffant. They wore matching coronation crowns and carried cascades of white spider mums and yellow pompons.

Joan Buck of Webster and Rita Ann Lastoka, Monessen, cousins of the groom, were bridesmaids. They wore nile green ensembles identical to those worn by the honor attendants. They carried cascades of yellow spider mums and pompons.

Flower Girl

Karen Marie Wigginton, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length gown of white lace, tulle and taffeta. It was styled with a fitting bodice and full ruffled skirt. She wore matching mitts and a white net bonnet and carried a basket of white pompons with yellow accents.

Joseph Hahn, Donora, cousin of the groom, was best man. John Turanin Jr. of New Castle, brother of the bride, was master of ceremonies. Ushers were Mario Sirianni of Donora and Robert Dragon of Monessen.

The mother of the bride wore navy blue, black accessories and a pink rosebud corsage. The groom's mother wore a navy blue ensemble with a pink rose corsage.

A dinner at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Later there was a reception for 500 at St. Dominic Social Center, Donora. A tiered wedding cake centered the buffet table.

Guests were present from area towns, New Castle, Roscoe, Cleveland, Ohio, Waynesville, Mo., Pittsburgh, Trenton, N.J., Elizabeth, Bentleyville, Clairton, Homestead, New York and California.

Florida Trip

When the couple left for a Florida trip, the bride wore a blue jacket dress, white accessories and a white orchid. They will live with the mother of the bride.

After rehearsal the night before the wedding there was a party at the Turanin home.

A graduate of Monessen High School, the bride is employed at Sears and Roebuck Co. here. The bridegroom graduated from Donora High School served two years in the army and is employed at Buck's Garage, Webster.

'Speaking of Beauty'

"HAIR FASHION FORECAST"

By James V. Bonafed

Note: Mr. Bonafed is in New York attending the National Beauty Trades Show and phoned his Salon the Hair Fashion Committee's release.

Gentlemen, watch out—and ladies, take care! A suggestion of the siren is high style in hair style this coming Fall and Winter. The new trend for styles has been dubbed the "Siren Lift" by the Official Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, the hair fashion authority of the beauty profession.

If you think you are not the siren type, wait until you try one of the new coiffures, the stylists advise. Because, the "Sirent Lift" actually harks back to an exciting magic as old as Eve's and as alluring as a siren's song.

For one thing, bangs will be big news in the new style trend. But not the thin or severely straight bangs you may have in mind. This is a competely new idea in bangs. They are full, lifted a little to accentuate the eyes and mouth. Soft, deep waves and a hint of curl give you the feeling that your hair is once again the most important beauty accessory in the entire fashion picture.

Hair Shorter Again

And, hair is shorter again. You will find it is short enough to be curled into a lifted look at the back of the head, but not too short to have a wonderfully full and flattering back-interest.

Front view or back view, your hair must be your most beautiful accessory, and with good reason, too. The fashion silhouette demands it.

Even the millinery news for Fall requires that your hair be in view. Hats will be worn to the back of the head. Many will be beret-shaped, or have a shower-capped look exposing a wide expanse for provocative bangs.

-o-

Of course, you will need a permanent base for your new hair style. Our "Fashion Perm" is styled for Fashion's new "Siren Look". Just as any dress must have a pattern, professional shaping, cutting and your permanent wave are your pattern for an exciting new coiffure.

ON THE BALL

Flu Stories Monotonous But—

It must get monotonous reading about the current flu epidemic on the sports page for it most certainly is getting monotonous writing about it . . . But nothing that has happened in the valley in years has had such an impact on school sports activities as the current malady . . . After having postponed the Hempfield game, Monessen school officials felt their problems were over but the phone rang at the high school office this week and on the other end of the line Brownsville High officials were requesting a delay of their game until Monday . . . The same situation happened at Rostraver with the Glassport game of last week and now the North Huntingdon tilt is off . . . If the postponement date does not work out it will probably be the first time in valley history teams have not played two weeks in succession during the grid season.

Ever wonder how many baseballs major league ball teams must use per season when you see all those foul balls going into the stands? Well, the answer is 100,000 used by the 16 major league clubs . . . Speaking of balls going into the stands, the Pittsburgh Steelers certainly take a beating when a booter like Lou Grozza sends field goal kicks through the uprights on the third base side of Forbes Field on extra points and short field goal attempts . . . The oval invariably sails into the crowd and is not returned. They (footballs) cost much more than baseballs, you know . . . In answer to many inquiries, the WPIAL grid season deadline is annually the Saturday after Armistice Day (Veterans Day) which this year would have been Nov. 16 until a weeks extension was granted by the WPIAL due to the flu.

From Europe to Valley To College

About six years ago a lad named Simeon Pestich came to the United States from Yugoslavia. He arrived in Monongahela, being adopted by a family there . . . Too small for football and having meager knowledge of the game he instead went out for the sport he had learned in Europe — soccer . . . For three seasons he starred for great Monongahela High teams, one winning the WPIAL title . . . Last Saturday that same lad booted two of three Pitt goals in a 3-0 deefat of Dennison in the Panthers' season opener . . . Playing with Simeon is a former foe, Leo Bressanelli, one of the greatest high school players ever developed at soccer-rich South Fayette High.

Earl Morrall, brilliant new Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback, was a substitute at San Fransisco last year understudying the 49ers' Y. A. Tittle . . . Morrall appeared in 12 games for the 49ers and completed 38 of 78 passes for a 49 per cent average . . . Proof of what a winning club can do dept. . . . Two years ago the St. Louis Cardinals were operating in the red. This season with a winning ball club the Redbirds will show a profit of exactly one-half million dollars . . . Redbird Stan Musial's son, Dick, wants to go to Notre Dame and has his heart set on playing football, not baseball where his illustrious father gained fame . . . Dick scored four TDs for Christian Brothers High School in a recent game.

Notre Dame - Army Tilt on TV

Valley football fans who have been wondering whether the Army-Notre Dame game will be telecast can now relax for it will appear on the magic screen Saturday . . . The announcement wasn't official until yesterday when it was selected as the NCAA's game of the week . . . Over 100,000 will witness the clash, renewed after a 10-year lapse . . . Coach Brennan of the Irish carried the opening kickoff 97 yards for a score the last time the two teams met. Wouldn't he like one of his '57 lads to duplicate that feat? . . . Boxing may return to the valley soon with the local Lions Club and the Rostraver Lions contemplating a fight card at the Monessen High gym.

Bellmar, E-F Tussle Postponed Indefinitly

BULLETIN

Bellmar's game with Elizabeth - Forward High School scheduled for tomorrow night was postponed indefinitely late this morning at the request of Elizabeth - Forward school authorities who reported 500 students absent with the flu. Bellmar Athletic Director Raymond Barker reported the game may be played in late November.

Bellmar High School's Hurricane gridders, still smarting from a 32-12 stinging at the hands of German Township last week hope to get back on the winning track tomorrow night when they host the Elizabeth - Forward eleven at Bellmar Stadium.

The Warriors, who lost only one game last year, have been taking their bumps this season with only a tie to show in four games but have been playing some rugged foes.

Taking the measure for Tony Rubino's lads have been Braddock, 53-7, Bethlehem Joint 19-6, Duquesne 26-0 while the 0-0 tie was with West Allegheny.

Three Regulars Back

Rubino has three regulars back in end Billy McCall, 170, 6-2, and Frank Bernadowski, 6-1, 155, and Guard Joe Bakewell, 5-8, 160. Quarterback Richard Pagliari, 6-0, 160, saw some action last season but was not the regular quarterback.

The Elizabeth - Forward backfield goes at an average of 160 pounds while the line is around the 175 mark, fairly heavy for an A team.

Several Class AA teams are on the '57 Warrior schedule as they get ready to enter that classification perhaps next season.

Bellmar's visitors tomorrow night won't be any soft, touch as they are just waiting to catch a team napping and put the coup de'etat on thot eleven.

Coach Bap Manzini of the 'Canes plans no lineup changes unless perhaps Larry Petras, who showed well against German even in defeat, starts in place of Ron Coates.

Jean Onufer Posts Slovak Loop Mark

Jane Onufer's 198 single game total set a new Slovak Ladies Bowling League record last night. Her record-breaking feat overshadowed the 438 three-game high rolled by E. Demchak. Christian Mothers took the team honors.

Holy Name and league-leading Christian Mothers took the matches over Ladies Auxiliary and Slovak Home.

Other leading scorers were Betty Chomko, Irene Kandrick, Mary Hornack, Margaret Sassak and Margaret Zubic.

Standings — Christian Mothers—11-1, Ladies Auxiliary 6-6, Slovak Home 4-8, Holy Name 3-9.

Flu Now Hitting Junior High 11s

Junior High games in the valley were "taking it on the chin" like their big brothers as the flu bug moved down to the junior teams this week.

Monessen's game with Monongahela's Junior High set for tonight was cancelled as was the Vernon-South Huntingdon clash carded for tomorrow afternoon.

On he doubful list were tonight's Perry-Rostraver game, this afternoon's Marion - Fallowfield clash and tomorrow night's Carroll - Brownsville game.

The Lancer - Brownie Junior High tilt was set for Monongahela High School's stadium at 7:30 o'clock. The Rostraver - Perry game is a 7:30 o'clock tilt at the Rostraver Stadium.

Frisco Signs Dahms

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The San Francisco 49ers have signed Tom Dahms, former Chicago Cardinal tackle, to replace the injured Bob St. Clair in the offensive line.

Girard, Dawson To Try Hands at Steeler Kicking

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Veteran end Jug Girard or rookie quarterback Len Dawson may take over the placekicking chores for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Both players concentrated on place kicks during practice Tuesday in preparation for the Steelers' game with the Chicago Cardinals Sunday at Forbes Field. Defensive back Gary Glick's poor conversion and field goal showing against the Cleveland Browns prompted the change.

Girard, who leads the Steelers' scoring with 24 points, may go on to set a Pittsburgh scoring record if he gets the kicking assignment. Halfback Sid Watson led the scoring last year with 37 points in 12 games. Joe Geri holds the all-time record with 67.

Coach Buddy Parker and tackle Willie McClung, both recent flu victims, returned to action Tuesday.

Lafayette, Lehigh In Lambert Lead

NEW YORK (UP)—Lafayette and Lehigh, each winner of its first two games, tied for first place today after the first week's balloting for the Lambert Cup, symbolic of small college football supremacy in the East.

The Lambert Cup is the newly-established little brother of the Lambert Trophy, which goes to the major college leader in the East.

Lafayette and Lehigh each received 6.5 of a possible 10 points in balloting by sportswriters, sportscasters, magazine editors and coaches. Tufts was third, followed by Amherst, Rhode Island, Bucknell, Williams, Gettysburg, Hofstra and Hobart.

Other teams receiving votes were Penn Military, Lycoming, West Chester Teachers, Westminster, Springfield, Maine, Juniata, Connecticut, Ithaca, American International, Delaware, Muhlenberg, Geneva, Brandeis and Alfred.

St. Johns Tops In St. Cajetans

St. Johns held down first place in the St. Cajetan Bowling League following a 2-1 victory over Notre Dame last night. Other winners were Duquesne over Villanova, Niagara over St. Francis, Georgetown over Fordham and Loyola over St. Vincent.

Armand Niccolai, Monessen High grid mentor, topped all scorers with a 514 three-game series but Steve Hardoby and the single game mark of 196. Other high scorers were Joe Bafile, Alfred Greco, Carmen DeMarco, Patsy Spadafore, Frank Venneri, John Catanzaro, Ralph Greco and John DeLuca.

Standings — St. Johns 9-3, Niagara 8-4, Notre Dame 8-4, Loyola 6-6, Villanova 6-6, Duquesne 6-7, Fordham 5-7, St. Francis 4-8, Georgetown 5-7 and St. Vincent 4-8.

Browns Not Interested

CLEVELAND (UP)—Coach Paul Brown of Cleveland Tuesday night knocked down reports that the Browns are interested in obtaining quarterback Ronnie Knox from the Chicago Bears. Cleveland was among four clubs named by a source close to the Knox family as being interested in his contract.

The Canadian Governor-General's Foot Guards have acted as guard of honor for the governors-general at the opening of the Canadian parliament for more than 50 years.

Next Week's 'Hawk Game Rescheduled For Saturday Night

BULLETIN

Monessen's game with Redstone High School next Friday night has been rescheduled for Saturday providing the Brownsville game is played Monday night. Should the Brownsville game be postponed again the Redstone game will revert back to Friday.

Unless further unforeseen developments like the flu continuing to take a toll at Brownsville, the Monessen-Brownie game will tentatively be played Monday night having been switched from a Friday date.

Last week's Monessen - Hempfield game was postponed indefinitely due to the flu having hit here but this week the situation is reversed with the Brownsville school officials requesting the change.

Yesterday morning 20 of the Brownie players missed practice sessions and Coach Alex Barantovich was also on the disabled list.

The reason for a tentative date is that such an arrangement for a Monday game hinges on whether the Redstone game carded for next Friday can be switched to Saturday.

Niccolai Back on Feet

On the local scene Coach Armand Niccolai has recovered from the effects of the "flu bug" and is anxious to get his team back in action. "These layoffs are not good for a team for the edge you've put on them with pre-season drills and the conditioning goes down the drain," Niccolai stated. Most Monessen players are off the sick list.

The Brownies will bring a team here Monday night (if that's the night the game is played) which is unbeaten, having won its first two games by one point, over Redstone and Munhall. The third game on the card was to have been Charleroi but that tilt was postponed until the end of the season.

Barantovich has several veterans back from a team which posted a 5-5 mark last year with Art Bentley classy halfback, the main cog in the Brownie attack.

With the Monessen-Brownsville game off for Friday, Donora attempting to postpone its game with Redstone and Monongahela at West View cancelled all valley grid eyes will be on Charleroi Stadium where the unbeaten Cougars and Ambridge do battle Friday night.

Lock Haven must win to remain in the running for the STC championship after having cancelled its game with California last week because of an outbreak of flu.

In other conference games, Indiana can gain title consideration by defeating visiting Slippery Rock. Cheyney plays at Millersville and will be in search of its first victory, while Bloomsburg visits Mansfield and Shippensburg is heavily favored at California.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

"Don't Throw Clubhead"

The thing that will "kill" your shot fastest is premature uncocking of the wrists. Players who do this "throw" the clubhead from the top of the backswing; by the time the clubhead reaches the ball, there's practically no power left. Today's player is uncocking his wrists at the proper time — just at hip level.

Notice now today's player is keeping his left arm straight, is starting to firm up his left leg and is keeping his wrists cocked until the last moment. Notice, too, that, although the hands have almost completed their arc on the downswing, the clubhead itself still has a long way to go. Right here in the downswing the golfer should start pouring his hand action into the stroke. That's where the whiplash comes in.

Lindsay, Glen Hall Spark Blackhawks To 1-0 Victory

By UNITED PRESS

Ted Lindsay and Glen Hall, acquired from Detroit during the summer, have boosted the Chicago Black Hawks into an unaccustomed position atop the National Hockey League.

Lindsay, who was second in scoring last year, blazed home the only goal Tuesday night as Chicago defeated Toronto, 1-0, in the opening game of the season. Hall earned his starring role by turning back all Maple Leaf scoring threats while compiling a total of 25 saves in the Hawk goal.

Toronto outplayed Chicago during the first half of the game, but near the close of the second period Pierre Pilote of the Hawks stole the puck at mid - ice and passed it to Ed Litzenberger, who in turn relayed itt o Lindsay for the goal. Toronto's biggest scoring threat came in the opening period but Hall made three spectacular stops on close shots by Dick Duff and one by Tod Sloan.

Chicago, which finished the 1956-57 campaign in last place, will play at Montrealon Thursday and New York will be at Detroit.

Yanks Pin Hopes on Turley

Champs Need Win For 'Life'

By LEO H. PETERSEN

NEW YORK, (UP) — The New York Yankees pinned all their hopes on Bullet Bob Turley to keep them alive in the sixth game of the World Series today, and also to keep the Milwaukee Braves from stripping them of the world championship title.

Down three games to two, the Yankees were 3-2 choices to beat right-hander Bob Buhl today although the Braves were quoted 9-5 favorites to win the Series.

The Yankees faced the bleak prospect of being without the services of sluggers Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron for the remainder of the Series. Mantle is suffering from a torn tendon in his right shoulder while Skowron's ailing back has failed to respond to treatment.

Adding to the Yankees' troubles was the report that pitchers Johnny Kucks and Art Ditmar had contracted the flu.

Milwaukee had quite an imposing hospital list of its own as the teams prepared to square off at Yankee Stadium following Tuesday's off-day. Southpaw Warren Spahn was confined to his hotel room with the grippe while Red Schoendienst was a doubtful starter because of a groin injury suffered in the fifth game of the Series.

Both Knocked Out

Turley and Buhl both failed to survive the second inning when they started against each other in the third game of the Series at Milwaukee last Saturday.

Turley, the hard-throwing right-hander, was removed in the second inning Saturday after yielding four walks and three hits. He left the game leading 3-1 and Don Larsen came on to receive credit for the Yankees' ultimate 12-3 victory.

Buhl, a right-handed fastballer who, like Turley, is hampered by control trouble at times, was rocked for three runs in the first inning and was charged with the loss.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel said he probably would start rookie Tony Kubek in Center field, although he pointed out he might change his mind at the last minute and use left - handed hitting Joe Collins in Mantle's spot.

Stengel said he didn't plan to hold any of his pitchers back in today's game.

Plans Full Bullpen

"That would be a silly thing for me to do if it turns out there ain't no seventh game," he said. "Every pitcher I got will be in the bullpen."

While Casey wasn't concerning himself with the prospect of a seventh game, he indicated Don Larsen would be his starter in that one.

Spahn's sudden illness posed quite a problem for Milwaukee manager Fred Haney should the Braves be forced to play a seventh game. If Spahn isn't up to pitching in the seventh game, Haney might be forced to go with lanky Gene Conley or even start Lew Burdette again with only two days rest.

Stengel still hadn't made up his mind on several positions.

STENGEL'S MANTLE OF GLOOM — Casey Stengel and Mickey Mantle looked pretty blue (above) in the Yankee dugout at the start of the sixth game of the World Series in New York. Mickey, who didn't start because of a sore shoulder, may miss the entire game and tomorrow's tilt if the New Yorkers get a "life" today. Otherwise it's all over, if the Braves win.

Jim Tatum Is Named 'Coach of the Week'

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., (UP)— He's such a pessimist that he would shed tears of fear if his boys were playing Vassar.

He won only two games in his new job last year and lost those when it turned out that one player was ineligible.

He suffered through the first losing season ever but allows in his thick Carolina drawl that "things have a way of evening up."

He's Jim Tatum of North Carolina, the United Press Coach of the Week after his Tarheels pulled a 13-7 upset of Navy, a two-touchdown favorite and possibly the best team in the East.

Sunny Jim, a midwife at the birth of the split T, confessed that North Carolina "was more ready for Navy than any opponent the last two years."

Made Own Breaks

"We thought we were in a very good position to upset a fine team," he said. "On Friday, I knew every boy wanted to get in this game because they could see such a good opportunity for us. We got unusually good breaks but our boys made them. Extra efforts by our players won the game — that plus scouting reports and hard work by our staff."

The colorful, 43-year-old Tatum, a native of McColl, S. C., is on the spot at Carolina, where he played tackle under Carl Snavely in the mid 1930's and served as head coach in 1942 before entering the Navy.

He became top man at Oklahoma in 1946 and started the Sooner dynasty which continues to this day. Then the soft-spoken Tatum moved on to Maryland for nine glorious years which produced one national champion (1953), five bowl teams and a reputation as a master of both the split T offense and every conceivable defense.

Now More Dividends

Big Jim returned home to Carolina last year and had the miseries. But his own ceaseless work and organizational ability has started to pay dividends.

Back in his service days, Tatum and Bud Wilkinson, the present Oklahoma coach, were assistants to Don Faurot, the old Missouri master, and perfected the split T at Iowa Pre-Flight.

Tatum, hardly taking time to celebrate the upset of Navy, expects a "tough game" this Saturday against Miami of Florida. He indicated his defense, which was geared to stop Navy's passing last week and made five interceptions, will concentrate on the Miami "belly series."

"The greatest way in the world to build character is winning football," Big Jim said. "Losing results in an inferiority complex."

Michelosen Pulls 'Big Switch' With Panther Backfield

PITTSBURGH (UP)— Pitt Coach Johnny Michelosen switched backfield players like a chess champ today in order to come up with a smooth working combination for Saturday's game with the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Several of Pitt's front line ball carriers have been sidelined with injuries suffered in the Southern Cal game. As a result, Michelosen and his aides have been hard pressed to find replacements.

Among the injured who may not see action against Nebraska were halfbacks Jim Theodore, Peter Prince and Andy Sepsi, fullbacks Fred Riddle and Dick Bowen, an Oklahoma game casualty and quarterback Bill Kaliden.

Pittsburgh's linemen were hale and hearty after the Trojan game so Michelosen faced no problem there. The healthy ball carriers avoided all rough stuff during Tuesday's drills.

Miteff - Dejohn Set For TV Tonight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP)—Argentine heavyweight Alex Miteff, who came to the United States to seek his boxing fortune, knows that the spoils of tonight's nationally-televised bout with Mike DeJohn is a contender's status.

"I will win," he said simply, and the oddsmakers agree, making him a 3-1 favorite.

Miteff, 22, built his string of 12 pro victories against no losses on his punching and his swiftness. DeJohn, 26, is a puncher, maybe the best that's come Miteff's way.

The American Hockey League opens its 1957-58 season tonight with all six teams listed for action.

The defending champion Cleveland Barons entertain the Hershey Bears, the Providence Reds visit the Springfield Indians, and the Buffalo Bisons host the Rochester Americans.

The Barons won the pennant and the Calder Cup playoff championship last season, and most experts feel Cleveland is the team to beat agair this season.

Back for another long campaign with the Barons are Freddie Glover, the league's leading scorer last season; Bo Elik, the outstanding rookie, and Jimmy Moore, the top playmaker of the 1956-57 season. In addition, the Barons acquired veteran goalie Johnny Bower from the Providence Reds in exchange for Marcel Paille.

Three of the teams have new coaches this season. They are Harry Watson at Buffalo, Cal Gardner at Springfield and Rily McLenahan at Rochester. The holdover coaches are Johnny Crawford at Providence, Frank Mathers at Hershey and Jackie Gordon at Cleveland.

New York Loses Dodgers, Starts Campaign for 1958 Replacement

NEW YORK (UP)—New York, having lost the second of its National League teams when the Dodgers officially moved to Los Angeles Tuesday, began a campaign today to get a replacement.

Mayor Robert Wagner said he would appoint a committee to try to lure another National League team to New York—"I hope in time for the 1958 season."

That appeared to be forlorn hope, but it was possible. Under major league rules, New York still has three weeks to swing a deal, since Oct. 31 is the deadline. For a long time the Cincinnati Redlegs were the No. 1 candidate, but now Redleg owner Powell Crosely insists he won't sell to anyone who takes the franchise out of Cincinnati.

The Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies were other objectives as National League replacements, and there also was some talk that the Cleveland Indians, whose attendance is way down, might move to the borough of Queens—the Yankees are in the Bronx—as a second American League team.

Yanks Against It

The Yankees, of course, are strongly opposed. They will suggest to the December meeting of the major leagues that their franchise be extended to include all the boroughs of New York City except Brooklyn. The National League will oppose that, of course.

National League President Warren Giles said last week that his league hopes to be back in New York "eventually."

Baseball sources generally agreed that no major league team will come into New York unless it gets a municipal stadium, such as Milwaukee has, and the San Francisco Giants and the Los Angeles Dodgers will have.

New York City officials are willing to provide plenty of land in Flushing Meadow in Queens, site of the 1939 World Fair, but argue that baseball is a private money-making enterprise and should build its own stadium and depend very little on the city or county.

The Dodgers, who have been a National League team in Brooklyn since 1890, ended that part of their history Tuesday with a typewritten statement of 52 words handed to newsmen at the World Series press center in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The meat of the statement was simply that "stockholders and directors ... unanimously agreed that the necessary steps be taken to draft the Los Angeles territory."

The move will set off a chain of minor league realignment.

Obviously the Pacific Coast League must make drastic changes, or fold up. It has lost its Los Angeles and San Francisco teams, and San Diego and Sacramento, in the shadow of the new major league teams, must give up, too.

Rookies in Rousing Start in Pro Loop

By UNITED PRESS

The rookies are off to a rousing start in the National Football League this season.

Before the campaign began, some observers said the 1957 NFL rookie crop was a poor one. But the first two weeks of action indicates the first-year players may be one of the best groups to join the pro league in recent years.

Rookies already are playing valuable roles for most teams. Eleven of the 51 touchdowns scored so far have been made by first-year men.

Philadelphia and Washington are depending heavily on rookies and will test them against top - flight opposition this Sunday. The Eagles (0-2) play the Browns (2-0) at Cleveland while the Redskins (1-1) entertain the champion Giants (1-1) at Washington. The Browns are favored by seven points and the Giants by six.

In Sunday's other games, the Bears (0-2) are 7½ point choices to beat the San Francisco Forty-Niners (1-1) at Chicago; the Lions (1-1) are favored over the Los Angeles Rams (1-1) by one point at Detroit; the Baltimore Colts (2-0) are favored by the same margin against the Green Bay Packers (1-1) at Milwaukee, and the Chicago Cardinals (1-1) and Steelers (1-1) are rated even at Pittsburgh.

This week's United Press selections: Browns over Eagles, Redskins over Giants, Bears over Forty-Niners, Lions over Rams, Packers over Colts and Steelers over Cardinals.

IBC Changes Policy

NEW YORK (UP)—The International Boxing Club said it would schedule 10 - round semifinals in an effort to develop main-event boxers. The new policy starts Oct. 18 with Tony DiBiase and Tony DeCola in a 10 -round semifinal under the Rory Calhoun - Rocky Castellani main event.

GOING TO THE MOON FOR U. S. — Above is an artist's conception of the U. S. moon vehicle, developed under the Air Force's "Project Farside," said to be ready for use now at the Eniwetok Pacific proving ground. It would be equipped with a television camera capable of sending pictures of the far side of the moon, never seen on earth, back to earth. The project calls for a four-stage rocket to be launched from a balloon at a 100,000-foot altitude. The photo illustrates launching of the rocket through the apex of the balloon. The vehicle would not land on the moon, but would circle the moon before returning to earth.

Chuckles Come Out Of Soviet Satellite

By JAMES RYAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., (UP)—Satellite "Sputnik" has provided scientists here with chuckles as well as chills.

A spokesman at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory says thousands of calls, ranging from the "very entertaining to the fantastic," have been received from all parts of the world.

John White, information officer for the observatory which is responsible for the visual tracking of the Russian baby moon, cited some.

One caller, who described herself as "a little old lady," told White she saw two satellites when she got up to pray before sunrise. She said the pair "had long blue and white tails." She ended her lengthy report by saying she was going "to definitely pray tonight and watch for those terrible satellites."

White said a young girl reported seeing the Russian satellite while driving west of Boston. She said it "was very long and had five little feet and I stopped the car and watched it for forty minutes."

These two reports, along with about thirty others. White classified as "highly imaginative, very entertaining and good listening."

He described hundreds of other prepaid calls from such places as Hawaii, Canada and Mexico "as bordering on the fantastic."

Some of these viewers described the satellite as "moving very fast . . . very slow . . . heading in unusual directions . . . hovering over their homes . . . shaped like a saucer . . . like a sausage . . . changing shapes. . .having a big eye."

Saw Two Satellites

Another caller in the "fantastic category" reported two satellites "going by." One was "following the other, with the second going faster than the first but failing to catch it."

Some of the persons in this classification offered to send signed statements, autographed pictures of themselves, their families or their friends to verify their sightings.

Many anxious phoners asked when the satellite would "pass over" their home town or city, and if "it was dangerous . . . had spies aboard . . . or possibly could kill anyone."

Webster — Fellsburg — Pricedale

Correspondent: Mrs. Mary Echart — Phone B. V. 514

Various Churches Take Part in Sunday Services

The Sunday Service of Webster was held in the Methodist Church with representatives from various churches in the township taking part. Bill Mauer, of the Presbyterian Church, was leader.

The Methodist choir sang, "I Know Him" accompanied by Odessa Smith. The Rev. Henry Frank, of Olive Branch Baptist Church, read from scripture and a duet was offered by Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford accompanied by Dolores Neth, of Fells Church.

The Rev. John Shell, pastor, gave offertory prayers and Odessa Smith played an offertory selection. A singspiration followed. Mr. Maurer then announced that revival services will be held at Nazarene Church on Oct. 13 with Mr. Paul Switzer as speaker and on Oct. 20 the Rev. Anna Potter, of Concord Church, will speak.

Honor Rev. Jackaway

Maurer then introduced the Rev. J. Nelson Jackaway, who spoke on the "Shepherd and Sheep". During his introduction, Maurer reviewed the work done in the township by the Rev. Mr. Jackaway and expressed appreciation for a "job well done." The Rev. Mr. Jackaway is leaving the district.

The Rev. Mr. Shell then presented the Rev. Mr. Jackaway with the two bouquets from the pulpit. The latter expressed his "appreciation and thanks to the people of the communities for your kindness and thoughtfulness to me and my family."

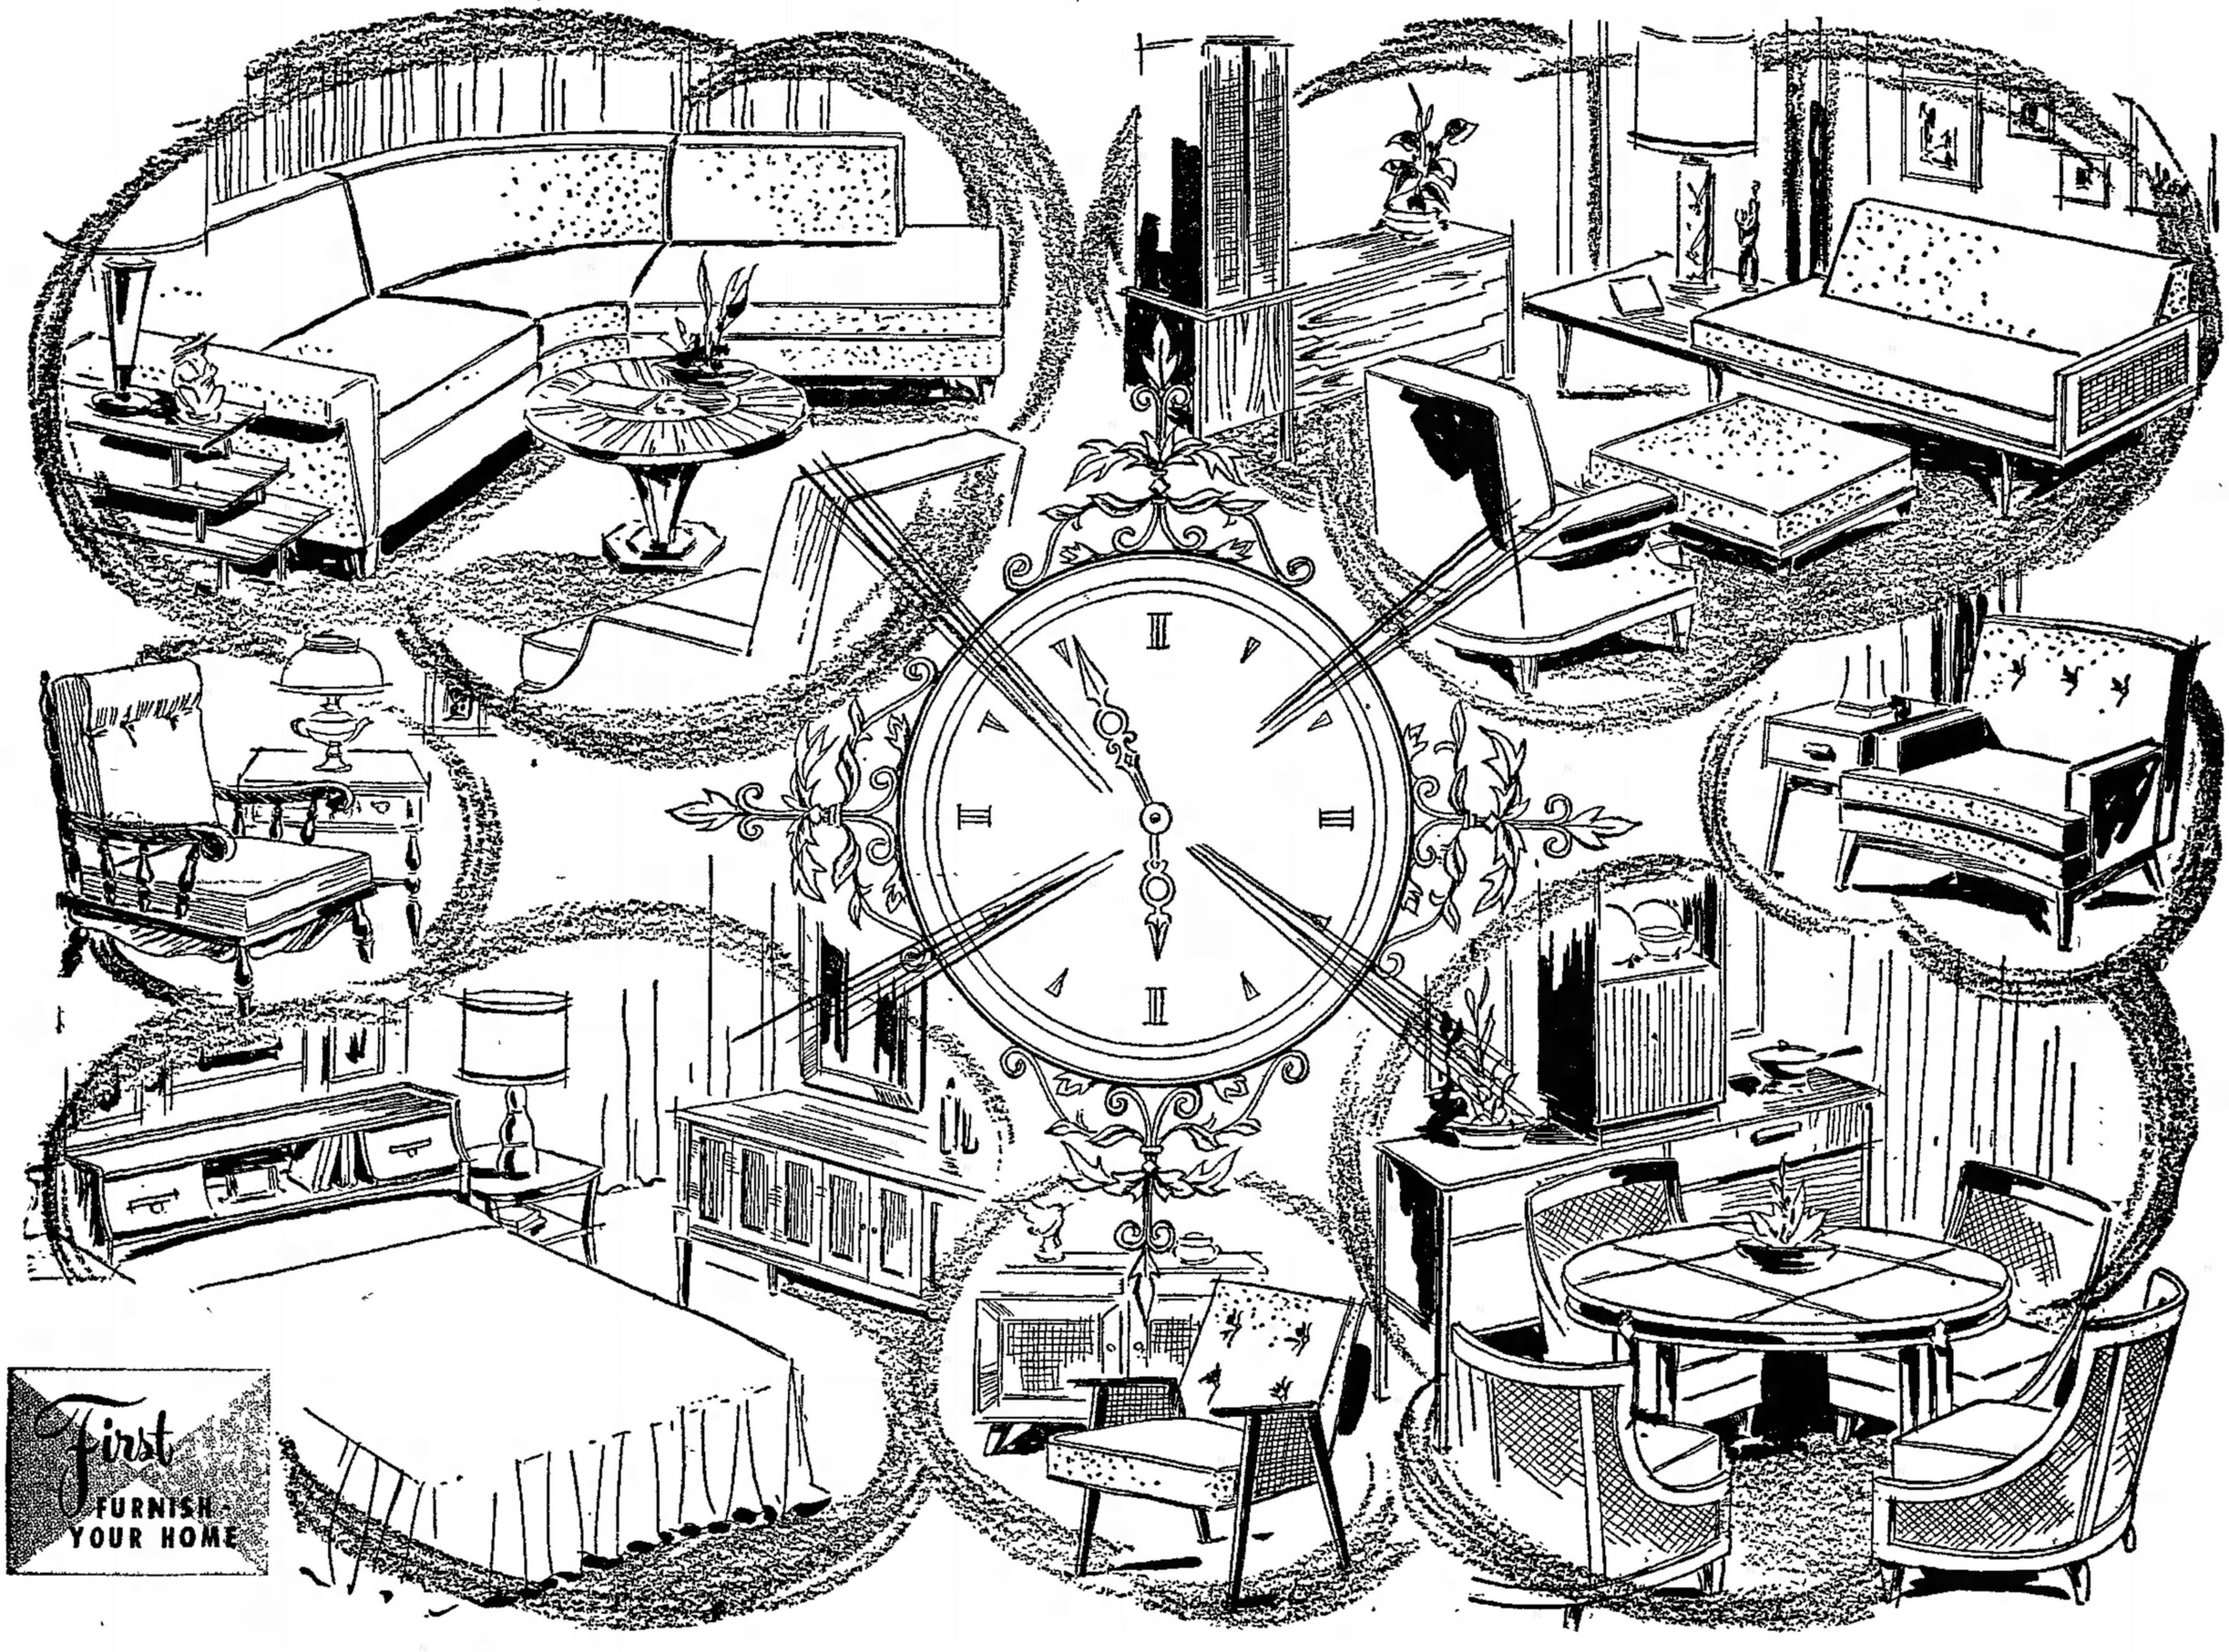
New Home Furnishings Are Elegant, Gracious

Live in luxury and love it — in a luxury that reflects your personality, your tastes, your way of living. Combine the feeling of having roots, of belonging, that gracious traditional styles give you, with the sleek exciting designs of today, and you have achieved the new American look. This look is a blending, a softening, of the stark contemporary designs of a few years ago, with the richness and elegance of yesterday. Your home should always show the personal likes of your family—never appear as a stage setting.



Dress Up Your Home for Comfort, Beauty

A shabby, worn-out dress in your wardrobe is quickly placed in the "to be discarded" pile. Do you pay the same attention to your furniture, as you do your wardrobe? You want your home to reflect you, the kind of person you are, the type of life you live. You want to create the best impression possible.

A chair for the Mr. of the house and one for the Mrs.—with a hassock in between. The Mr. Chair is larger in scale to be comfortable for the man of the house. It has a higher back, arms, and a deeper seat. The Mrs. Chair is lower, narrower and armless.

A vanity suspended between two chests with a vertical mirror over it creates an interesting arrangement in this bedroom. The bench at the foot of the bed is a convenient idea. It provides seating space and a place to put the bedspread for the night.

Home Should Put Best Foot Forward

More and more these days, entertaining is being done at home. When your guests arrive, does your living room put its best foot forward? It should. Your guests can quickly see, by the way you live, what kind of a person you are.

The grace of French provincial styling is combined with the flexible properties of modern furniture in this new sectional grouping. Too often, people do not realize that sectional sofas are available in more than contemporary design. No matter what period or type of design you prefer, it is quite likely that you will be able to find a sectional sofa which suits your taste. Sectionals are wonderfully flexible, allowing a great deal of freedom in room arrangement.

Dress Up Your Home Today; Give New Look to Furnishings

The furnishings in your home have undoubtedly received a great deal of wear since you first purchased them. The nicks and scratches and tears which were placed on the furniture by your children may bring back sentimental memories to you, but they do not have the same effect upon your guests. Take a look around your home. Perhaps it is time for a change.

It isn't necessary to entirely refurnish a house in order to give it a new look. A few new pieces will work wonders to create an air of freshness. Examine your furnishings with a cold, unprejudiced eye and decide what needs replacement. You will be amazed at the change that just a few new touches can bring.

Don't feel that you must either re-furnish completely or do nothing at all. Probably several of your old pieces are still in good condition. And they will live very well with the new furniture you buy.

As a matter of fact, your old pieces and your new furniture will complement each other. Lovely, old furniture — in good condition — takes the "newness" out of new pieces and lend: a softness and mellowness to the room In a reverse manner, new pieces will brighten up the older furniture in your home.

Probably your sofa is in dire need of replacement. Your children bounced on it when they were very young and sprawled all over it when they were teenagers. And in the past few years, you have spent a great deal of time on it while watching television. It has given you good service but you have noticed that it is just not as comfortable as it used to be and that it really looks quite shabby. You would be much wiser to replace it with a new one than to consider repairing it. Actually, it would probably be far less exsive to buy a new sofa.

You will find many more conveniences in today's new furniture, too. Fabrics on upholstery are spill and dirt-proof. Wood tops on tables and chests are, in many cases, protected by a special finish which prevents staining and accidental burning. The new furniture will relieve you of many worries.

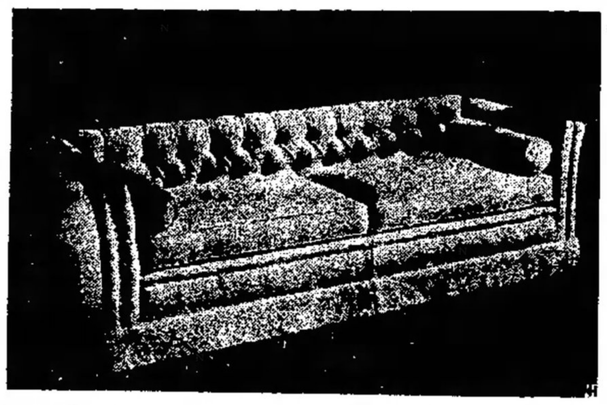
Old furniture doesn't flatter you. It does not provide you with the kind of background in which you should live. Be sure your home furnishings are as up-to-date as you are. New furniture will make your home — which contains so many wonderful memories — look years younger.

Before arranging your furniture, study the traffic pattern through the room. Be sure to leave often-traveled paths clear of furniture so that your living room does not become an obstacle course. Don't forget, too, to leave enough leg room between the sofa and the coffee table which stands in front of it.

With a little careful planning, your living room will be the kind of room you really want it to be — an attractive room that is warm and inviting and which offers a great deal of comfort to your family and your guests.

Unique Design In New Collection

A truly unique design element distinguishes one of the pieces in a new collection called "Janus." Rare carved Japanese cherry blocks, painstakingly made centuries ago for the printing of ancient books, are mounted in the doors of a super-structure which can sit on top of a buffet. The blocks are unique, because each is the only one in the world; no two are alike.



ELEGANT SOFA — This sofa is designed to fit your specifications. It is available in whatever length you desire. The sofa gives an appearance of richness, due to its fine styling. It will add elegance to your living room.

'Square Look' New Appliance Fashion

Good looks are keeping up with the tremendous mechanical improvements in modern major appliances.

Probably the most significant style change has been what different manufacturers call the sheer or square look.

Because of this style's uncluttered, clean, square design, free-standing appliances can fit snugly into cabinet arrangements and look like built-ins. Straight sides and right angle corners can be placed cozily against the straight sides of standard or custom-built cabinets without major carpentry.

Recessed hinges permit refrigerator models in this style to be placed against a side wall without having to allow space for door swing, since the door opens fully within its frame.

Built-ins themselves are rising in popularity, with virtually all appliances available in this fashion.

Stack-on units, appliances made to fit standard countertops, give the built-in look, too, without need of carpentry. The built-in look is also carried out with drop-in units, which require either that a hole be cut in the existing counter, or that it be placed in a counter that was pre-cut by the manufacturer.

Pre-assembled packaged kitchens, which combine several basic appliances in a single framework, are being produced by more and more manufacturers. Smartly styled, these units are between seven and nine feet long, and are ideal for the modern-minded home-maker with limited kitchen space.

Equipment that stands alone and is portable continues to have its appearance improved.

Like free standing or built-in appliances, these are available in various materials and colors.

Whatever your choice, you'll find the new look in kitchens is a good one.

Low Dining Table Is New Style Note

An important new style note on the home furnishings scene is the emergence of the low dining table. These new tables are about four inchs closer to the ground than the standard dining table and serve a number of purposes. Accompanying chairs are, of course, scaled to the lower height.

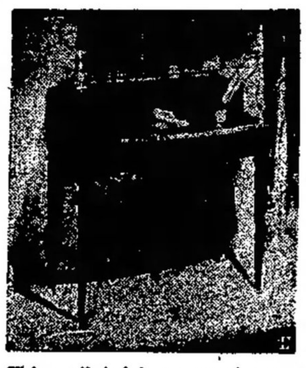
These tables are particularly suited to apartment living, although they are equally as handsome in a larger home. They can act as dining tables, cocktail tables and game tables.

If you have no separate dining ing room in your home, you will appreciate the fact that a low table can double in all of these capacities. Use it as a cocktail table for casual entertaining and then pull up the chairs when you want to serve a meal. You will find by the way, that this new low height is comfortable for even the tallest man.

The dining-cocktail tables also have many decorative features. One, made of a lovely walnut in a warm brown finish, has chalk-white ceramic tile inserts strategically placed in the table surface. The tiles are not only decorative but also act as built-in coasters for beverage glasses.

Another low table, in a light walnut finish, has a center of Portugese terrazo. It adds an interesting and attractive texture to the table while also providing a wonderful place to set hot dishes.

If you have been regretting the fact that your apartment just will not hold a full-size dining table, investigate the possibilities of these lower tables. Try placing one in the curve of your sectional sofa. You will find that it looks attractive while it serves its purpose.



This small desk is an attractive accent piece in a room. It takes up very little space, yet serves a very definite function. It provides a convenient place for catching up on correspondence. (Brandt Cabinet Works, Inc.)

TRIPLE DRESSER — Decidedly Italian in feeling, this triple dresser offers a wealth of storage room. Cane panels in the center of the dresser offer an interesting contrast to the rest of the piece.

Start Color Planning In the Living Room

Start your color planning for the whole house in the living room — then translate the scheme into a variety of ideas for other rooms in the house.

The basis for your color plan might be a new carpet or rug — either in a plain color that you are fond of, or one of the new textures or other designs. Select a blending shade for the walls, then one or two other colors for contrast on upholstered furniture.

If you use the same basic colors throughout the house, you can have variety and unity at the same time. The actual colors and their brightness or dullness will depend on the room where they are to be used.

For example, perhaps your living room has an aqua carpet with medium beige walls, brown and bittersweet upholstery, and white lamps. In a smaller, darker bedroom, you might use white walls, bittersweet carpet, a striped spread of bittersweet, aqua and beige. A tiny slipper chair could be covered in a print with a white background and an aqua pattern. The bedroom scheme would suit the room perfectly, be completely individual, yet tie in with the living room, and give your home a well-planned look.

Don't forget the importance of the wood tones in your decorating. A large area of every room is usually in wood, and this should be a part of the over-all plan. These wood tones can be used to give a substantial look to an otherwise pale scheme, if you use the dark finishes. Or you can accent a dark color scheme with a pale, light finish. Painted wood can offer a brilliant not of color.

When you are decorating your bedroom, consider the warmth of the wood furniture you use. If the room itself has a warm exposure, you will probably want to cool it off by using a cool-looking carpet and woods on the grayed side. Brighter color can accent these large areas when used on slipper chairs, in lamps, and in bedspreads.

The trend in the past few years has been to neutral tones for wall colors, with the rugs and spreads affording the brighter colors. Particularly popular recently has been the use of white walls, which gives a clean and larger look to any room, and can be used with any other colors.

The deeper, stronger tones of blues and greens are coming back into high fashion, and you can expect to see them this fall. If you do plan your rooms with these darker background colors, you will probably prefer lighter, clearer colors in your upholstery fabrics, and in the wood tones of your tables and chairs.

Water Heater Key to Family Cleanliness

With your new water heater, it will be possible to spend a rainy day at home and do three or four loads of wash, rather than limiting yourself to one wash a day for fear of exhausting the supply of hot water.

And, of course, all this washing is—being done while you're in the den watching the afternoon television show or reading the latest best-selling novel.

Some of the family's most beneficial and healthful living resulting from hot water are found in automatic dishwashing. Ideally, dishes being washed by hand should have water of between 130 and 150 degrees. But this is too hot to touch. So, hand-washed dishes do not usually get the bacteria killing benefits of hot water.

But in an automatic dishwasher, the temperature of the water can be as high as 160 or 180 degrees. It makes no difference, because the hands never touch the water.

When water of that high temperature is used, you can be sure that any bacteria or germs that have been on the dishes will be washed off. The possibility of a dish being a disease-carrier is just about eliminated.

In addition to being clean, dishes washed in an automatic dishwasher "look" clean. Those embarrassing moments when a guest might receive a spotted dish, are no more.

Your automatic water heater may be out of sight, but as you go through the day, getting all the hot water you need when you want it, it will never be out of mind.

New Furnishings for Home Draw from Sources of World

The new American look draws from the rich sources of all the world, just as we ourselves share in the culture of other countries through our ancestors. But these source designs have been softened, adapted, changed to our own 1957 way of living. Sturdy Colonial, so popular today, fills the need of strong, crafted appearance, together with the casual way of life so many of us lead. Eighteenth Century traditional and the more ornate Provincial designs give us the romantic look along with the practical finishes and engineering of contemporary science.

Modern styling is not only using the inspiration of Scandinavian, Italian, French and Oriental designers, but is becoming a beautiful blending of ornamental and fine detail. All of these, of whatever inspiration or period, have been adapted in size and utility to the modern American home.

Designers today are striving for richness in the furniture they produce. As one designer expressed it, "We are fundamentally a romantic people, and our homes should reveal that. We do not have to settle for one dominant look. This creates monotony."

Just as the new look in decorating combines periods and styles, so does the new look in individual pieces represent a bringing together of the best of today and yesterday. This look of elegance and richness is being achieved in a number of ways.

Designers are producing wood pieces that depend on the beauty of the wood grain and its own soft lovely color for a dramatic effect. Careful placement of veneers is creating exciting patterns on table tops and fronts of chests.

Drawer pulls are used for decoration, too. They are made of gleaming metal, or of matching or contrasting wood — with ceramic pulls adding a touch of color, unexpectedly and beautifully.

DECORATIONS which are applied directly to the furniture are becoming increasingly important. One large new collection features silk screen printing of Mexican motifs in green on a sand-finished walnut. In provincial furniture, entire pieces may be painted, or the legs of a dining table may be painted to contrast with a wood top.

Tiles are used to create interest and to bring color to table tops, either completely covered with tiles, or scattered about the surface to create a pattern.

The trend in furniture design, in recent years, has been towards correlated collections of pieces made to go with each other. The new "blending" look, with its added decoration, has eliminated the monotony which was once the danger in these correlated groups. Now, several pieces of a group contain design features which are not found in other pieces, offering variety and interest.

For example, a chest may have some brass trim which is not seen at all in other pieces in the group. Or the shaping of hardware may differ from piece to piece, such as round drawer pulls on a chest and oblong pulls on a table drawer.

Textures bring interest to home furnishings, too. Many chests feature panels which are reversible, with one side of wood, and the other of cane, grass cloth, fabric, brass grillwork, or a painted finish.

LEATHER is also important, with its soft finish, and exciting range of color. Two new collections have breakfronts in which the doors are of strips of leather woven into a lattice pattern.

Whatever your family's needs, your own preferences, or the style of your home, you may have the personal look in your surroundings. Whether you are starting fresh as a bride, or adding a spark to loved furnishings through a few choice pieces, the new American style will give your home the look you want.

Buy Furniture with Double Purpose Use

With space so much at a premium in today's homes, it is a wise homemaker who buys her home furnishings with an eye to more than one use.

Sofas which convert into beds are the most obvious piece of dual-purpose furniture. Today's sleeper-sofas are a far cry from the bulky, hard-to-manage sofa beds of the past. They are now as slim and as smart in styling as conventional sofas.

Sofa beds are available in almost any kind of styling which you can imagine. They may be modern or traditional in design. The sofas in modern styling may stand on slim legs, giving them a floating appearance, and eliminating any look of boxiness. The development of new opening mechanisms permits the design of a much slimmer profile.

A new sofa bed in Early American design is particularly attractive. It solves the problem for rooms which are decorated in Early American and in which a contemporary sofa bed just would not fit. This sofa has the traditional wing back and may be covered in a suitable fabric, with an Early American feeling. A matching wing chair is also available.

Though you may not think of serving carts as dual purpose furniture, they actually can fall into this category. They can act as a decorative and storage piece in a room when they are not in use.

Table-benches, too, are useful pieces which serve more than one function. These can be long low benches which serve as tables and which, with the addition of a flat cushion, make excellent seating pieces. Also attractive are small square tables which are seats when a small cushion is placed on top of them.

Fall-front desks are useful, too. They take up no extra room, yet provide a separate area for going over the household accounts, letter-writing, or for Dad to finish up work which he has brought home from the office.

Hostess Trays Are Innovation

Hostess trays which attach to the arms of a group of chairs and act as tables are an innovation on the style scene. The fruitwood arms of the chairs serve not only as style notes but perform a definite function — that of supporting the matching woodgrain thermoset plastic hostess trays which double as tables when slipped over the turnings of adjacent chairs. The chairs may be set tete a tete or facing in the same direction.

FAMILY ROOM — Early American in feeling, this family room or game room will provide many hours of comfort and relaxation. The sofa is actually a sofa bed which opens easily to accommodate an extra overnight guest. A new glide away mechanism permits the design of a much slimmer profile and lower seat so that dual purpose sofas no longer need be bulky and heavy looking.

Arrangement Is Important

Furniture arrangement is just as important in the bedroom as in any other room in the house. First, decide just what the room is to be used for — whether it is to be an adult sitting room, or a television room, or a study, as well as a bedroom.

Plan for plenty of storage for all these purposes. Then look at the furniture you already have and see what you can keep and what needs to be replaced to make the room function at its best. When you have the necessary furniture pieces firmly in mind, arrange the furniture either on paper, or mentally.

You need to be able to get in and out of the room easily, so place the bed, if possible, so that it clears the traffic path. Leave plenty of room at either side of the bed for tables big enough to hold your lamps, books, and so on. Try to arrange for at least one chair near the storage units, where you can sit to sort clean laundry, or for dressing.

If the bedroom is to serve as study or leisure room, too, arrange the furniture so that this area has a section all its own, away from the sleeping part of the room. Tables, chairs and lamps will make a convenient work spot.

Always try to provide some sort of seating space in the bedroom, aside from the bed itself. One good way is to use benches at the foot of the bed, which will double as suitcase racks when needed, and as a place to put your folded spread at night.

Another way to achieve unity in these areas is to use small matching rugs over your carpeting, at the side of the bed, in front of your dressing table, beneath a lounge chair and table.

New Screen Is Exciting Piece

An exciting accent piece is a new screen, available in any number of sections, which has a walnut and ebony frame enclosing a new translucent plastic panel. The panel material consists of a double sheet of thin fiberglass with a colorful and intricately designed fretwork of the same material sandwiched between. The effect is striking.

Sofa with Footstool

A handsome new sofa comes with its own footstool. The footstool is covered in a matching fabric and provides an extra measure of comfort.

Use Care in Furnishing Your Dining Area

In many homes today, the dining area has replaced the full-size dining room. Our pattern of living is so much more casual and relaxed and there is so little really formal entertaining done, that a dining area is all the space that many families require.

The dining area, however, can create some decorating problems. It is usually connected in some way with the living room. When furnishing it, you must be sure that it harmonizes with the living room so that it creates a unified picture.

Arrange your living room first. Then furnish your dining area so that it coincides with the atmosphere you have created in the living area.

Measure the amount of space you have to work with and then choose your furniture accordingly. Most likely, you will need a dining table which takes up the least amount of space possible when not in use. There are many varieties of these tables available.

The dining table may be a drop-leaf type, or an extension type, or you might like the kind of table which folds back into a buffet when it is not in use.

Even though space is limited, try to have enough room allotted for storage. After all, you will have to have some place to keep your linen, china and silver.

You might solve this storage problem by lining up a couple of chests against one wall. Or, if floor space is very limited, try using the wall arrangement of chests which stack on top of each other instead of spreading out to the sides.

These chests take up very little floor space but offer a wealth of storage room — and present a mighty attractive appearance, besides. Within one group, many variations of design are available so that any number of combinations may be created.

Naturally, the chests are all scaled to the same size so that they can be combined without creating any problems. The chests have little legs which are easily unscrewed so that when you want to change the scenery a little, all you have to do is unscrew the legs of the chests which are on the floor, screw them into the other chests, and rearrange them. They will present an entirely different picture..

If you would like to separate your dining area from your living room, there are a number of attractive room dividers available which will do this for you nicely. One new divider has drawers and cabinets which open from either side, so that your things are convenient to you no matter which room you are in. Another divider has a bench affair projecting from one side of it, giving you a little extra seating space.

Whether you want your dining area to be separated by a divider or whether you want it to be part of your living room, choose your furniture carefully so that it fills your needs, yet blends with your other furnishings.

Soft Leather Being Used More and More

Petal-soft leather, in any color under the sun, is opening more vistas on the decorating horizon. It is a wonderful material with which to work and brings an interesting texture into a room. Now that it is available in so many beautiful colors, all stops are out and the use of leather is limited only by imagination.

Leather has long been used to cover chairs and sofas and to provide contrast in table tops. Now it is also being used to cover doors of chests and cabinets. Strips of leather are woven to create a lattice effect in the doors of a new china cabinet.

The new leather is so soft that it is even being used as a drapery and bedspread material. The effect is unusual and beautiful. Screens which can act either as a background in a room or as a room divider are being made of leather strips.

Home Laundering Has Advantages

Laundering at home has advantages other than the luxury of owning automatic laundry equipment.

By doing your own laundry, for example, only a single stock of clothing and linen is required. No longer is it necessary to have double quantities of everything — one in use and one at the laundry. Your washables are always on hand for immediate use.

Sorting, counting and listing separate articles is unnecessary also, when the laundry is not sent out, but done at home.

Lost items always turn up because clothes never leave home, and pairs find their way back to each other again, even if laundered in different loads on different days.

There are about 18 million, 500 thousand home gardens in the United States.

MANY DESIGNS — A combination of design motifs is used in this correlated grouping called "Innovation." Case pieces have a Chippendale effect, with Queen Anne and Jacobean drawer and door pulls. Tables have a decidedly Italian provincial flavor while table and chair legs show a Scandinavian influence. All elements live well together. Notice how the use of correlated furniture brings unity to this living room-dining area arrangement. There is no break between decorating themes but each room flows smoothly into the other.

Reverses Ruling In $39,517 Case

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The state Supreme Court has reversed a lower court decision awarding $39,517 insurance payments to a Washington County lumber and building supplier whose plant was destroyed by fire.

In a 5-2 majority ruling handed down Monday, Samuel Easton, dealing as the Easton Lumber and Builders' Supply Co., lost the award ordered by the Washington County Court as the result of a fire three years ago.

Easton's attorneys argued before a lower court hearing that partitioned rooms in the basement of the main building of the lumber firm were "sheds" within the meaning of the policies and therefore covered by insurance.

But six insurance firms asked in a later hearing before three judges that the verdict be set aside and a new trial be granted. The trial judge agreed with the firms but was overruled by two colleagues.

Justice Herbert Cohen, writing the majority opinion for the high court, held that insurance of sheds would not include the basements.

Justices John C. Bell Jr. and Michael A. Musmanno dissented on the basis that Easton would not have insured his lumber for $60,000 if he had not meant the basement rooms to be included.

Metal Furniture Blossoming Out More Than Ever Today

Stylenews this fall is found in every facet of home furnishings. Designers have gone all out to make every type of furniture more beautiful and more functional than ever.

Metal furniture, which has been coming into its own in the last few years, is blossoming out even more this fall. It is being seen with much refinement of line and is so highly styled that it can take its place proudly in any dining room. Metal furniture is no longer just a kitchen product.

Metal dining groups are now really "groups" and not just a table and chairs. Coordinated buffets and china cabinets are now available to match tables and thus enable you to furnish an entire dining room with this furniture.

A dining group made of metal is particularly wonderful for a family with small children. Mother need never worry that the children will scratch or stain her dining furniture. Her metal table and other pieces are virtually child-proof. And adult-proof, too—beverage glasses will not leave stains, cigarettes will not scar.

The new metal furniture comes in a galaxy of colors and in many types of styling. Don't be under the impression that metal furniture is cold. It is far from that. In today's designs, metal furniture presents a warm and friendly appearance.

There is even a metal dining group done in Early American styling, for those who love this type of furniture. A round table comes with chairs which are upholstered, seat and back, in a lovely print fabric which carries out the Early American feeling. A very short skirt descends from the seat of the chairs, which are available without arms or styled like captain's chairs.

Tables are available in almost any style. There are drop-leaf models which take up very little room, extension tables with extra leaves, and refratory-type tables.

Those of you who have dining areas in your homes, rather than a separate dining room, and have shied away from metal dining furniture because you feel it will not blend with your living room, need worry no more. Several manufacturers are offering upholstered furniture on metal bases, designed to coordinate with dining groups.

The metal legs and frames of these upholstered pieces give them a light, airy look. They have the same slim, neat styling as conventional upholstered furniture, yet you will not have to worry about nicks and scratches as you do with wood.

Metal furniture will introduce a new carefree note into your home. It is easy to maintain, attractive to look at, and serves a practical purpose.

'Tri-Way' Beds Give Versatility

Imaginative engineering gives impressive versatility to the new "Tri-Way" beds. Component parts can be easily rearranged to turn the pair into twin beds, trundle beds for bunk beds, as desired. When appearing as conventional twin beds, the pair give no clue to other arrangements that can be achieved. Yet, with a few simple head and footboards, the two beds can be converted into a trundle arrangement, with one bed rolling under the other. An extra guard rail and ladder are provided for use when a bunk arrangement is desired.

Brass Ferrules Are Disappearing

The once popular brass ferrules on furniture legs are disappearing and so are the tapered, slanted legs that have held up most modern dressers and tables for years. More often now, legs are straight, square or imaginatively shaped. They seem to blend into sculptured stretcher bases or side panels.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband, father, son and brother, Harry T Fleming, who died one year ago today, October 9, 1956
Loving memories never die
As years roll on, and days pass by,
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
Of one we loved and will never forget.
Friends may think we forgot you
When at times we seem to smile,
Little do they know our sorrow
That the smiles hide all the while,
We think of you in silence
No eyes can see us weep
But many silent tears are shed
While others are asleep.
A smile, a tear, a thought sincere
How often we wish that you were here
Sadly missed by Wife Son, Mother, Brothers and Sisters

In loving memory of our dear son, Harry Tucker "Smoke" Fleming who died one year ago today, October 9, 1956.
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns the first year
In my lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near,
For loving memories never die
As years roll on and days pass by
Deep in my heart a memory is kept
Of one I loved and will never forget.
Sadly missed by his mother, Mrs. Lucinda Fleming

In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, Harry "Smoke" Fleming, who died one year ago today, October 9, 1956
What would we give his hand to clasp,
His patient face to see,
To hear his voice, to see his smile
As in the days that used to be
But in some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life
Sadly missed by brother, John, sister-in-law, Jeanne, Niece and Nephews.

In loving memory of my dear brother, Harry T. "Smoke" Fleming, who passed away one year ago today, October 9, 1956
This month brings back sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
'Tis lonesome here without him
And sad the weary way
For life is not the same since he was called away
More and more each day I miss him,
Friends may think my sorrow healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies beneath my heart concealed.
Sadly missed by sister, Doris Fleming Santavicca

In loving memory of my dear brother, Harry Tucker (Smokey) Fleming who died one year ago today, October 9, 1956.
Loving memories never die
As days roll on and a year has passed by.
Deep in my heart a memory is kept
Of one I loved and will never forget
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In my lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near
A grief, a tear, a thought sincere
How often I wish that you were here
Sadly missed by sister, Mrs Ada Sokol

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Pfc Pacifico Sacchini, who was killed in action in Italy 17 years today, October 9, 1944, during World War II
Duty called and he was there.
To do his best and take his share,
His heart was good, his spirit brave,
And his resting place is a soldier's grave
Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand we cannot touch,
We shall never lose sweet memories
Of the one we loved so much.
Sadly missed by Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters

In loving memory of my dear sister Irene Sedore Kalvesmaki, who died two years ago today, October 9, 1955
My heart still aches with sadness,
My eyes shed many tears,
God only knows how I miss you
At the end of two long years
And when evening shadows are falling,
And I am sitting all alone;
There comes to me a longing
If only you could come home
Sadly missed by sister, Ann

Ohio Convicts Helping Fight Germ Warfare

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP) —Convicts at Ohio Penitentiary are helping America strengthen its defense against germ warfare.

Army officials say vaccine tests now being conducted at the prison are of "vital importance."

Inmate "guinea pigs" have volunteered to expose themselves to "rabbit" or "deer-fly fever," medically known as Tularemia. The disease is caused by tiny bacteria and occurs among rabbits, squirrels and other rodents. It is transmitted by the bites of flies, ticks and lice.

While it is a disease found mostly among hunters, Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy, chief of the Army Chemical Corps, says that during wartime, "Tularemia is one of the many diseases which could be used against us by the enemy."

In man, the disease is marked by headaches, chills, fever, vomiting, loss of weight and enlargement of the lymph glands If untreated, it can be fatal.

U S. public health service reports show the disease is most prevalent in Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois, Texas, Kansas and Kentucky.

Tests Half Completed

The tests at Ohio Penitentiary are only half completed When they began more than a year ago, 31 inmates were injected with the disease and watched around the clock for their reaction

Being evaluated was the Foshay Tularemia vaccine, described by the Army as one of the best possible defenses against Rabbit Fever germ warfare.

A new series of tests will begin late this fall or early winter, when volunteers step into a mobile laboratory, don special masks and breathe in Tularemia germs.

Timed Exposures

By timing exposures, scientists hope to find out exactly how few of the germs it takes to infect a human

"We hope that when we finish all phases of this work, we can turn over to the medical world information which will assist doctors everywhere in controlling a disease which has taken many lives," Gen Creasy said.

He said the convicts "May contribute not only to society as a whole by providing us with new knowledge. but to this country's ability to resist its enemies."

Treatment of the latest group of prisoner volunteers will begin as soon as any symptoms appear, said Dr. Samuel Saslaw, director of the tests from the Ohio State University College of Medicine.

Hypnosis Has Place In Dentistry

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Hypnosis has a definite place in dentistry. But dentists tell us that it should not be used as a substitute for local anesthetics or other pain-killing measures.

In fact, the Journal of the American Dental Association says editorially that hypnosis in dentistry should be viewed mainly as a supplement to other processes, not as an approach in itself.

The chief value of hypnosis as far as dentistry is concerned is that it is helpful in relieving a patient's anxiety and tension. And there are relatively few of us who are completely free from tension as we sit in the dentist's chair.

Experts on the subject say that hypnosis in such cases falls into three categories.

One is the tranquilizing or relaxing phase in which tension is reduced.

Pain Threshold

Another is the anesthetic or analgesic phase in which the dentist can raise the patient's pain threshold and thereby reduce or eliminate sensitivity to pain, whether it is real or only imagined.

The third is the building of confidence phase in which final desensitization to dental procedures can be accomplished. This teaches the patient to relax easily for subsequent visits to the dentist.

Now the dentist who practices hypnosis must be thoroughly trained in its use. And he must have the patient's permission to use it.

Also, any psychological help the patient derives from hypnosis in dentistry must relate directly to the immediate dental problem. It must not, the ADA warns, extend into the field of psychotherapy.

Hypnosis definitely has tremendous potentials in dentistry. But even a dentist who has become an expert with hypnosis has to rely on the usual forms of anesthetics for prevention and relief of pain.

Question and Answer

P. B: I am constantly blushing. What can I do about it?

Answer: Blushing is usually caused by nervous instability.

Due to excitement or nervousness, there is stimulation to the nerves supplying the blood vessels to the face. This causes an increase in the circulation, producing blushing.

Form Reversal

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Irish McCalla, blonde actress who's too tall for many leading men, says she's not worried about type-casting—just type-titling. She's usually seen on TV as "Sheena," a jungle queen who rescues good guys. Now she'll be in a film, "She Demons," in which the leading man rescues her.

Brooches found in ancient tombs have fastenings resembling the modern safety pin.

'Rochester' Stars in TV Show of His Own

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Eddie "Rochester" Anderson flees Jack Benny's miserly clutches this week to star in a television show of his own.

It's a one-shot appearance in "The Green Pastures," in which he portrays Moses.

"I played in the movie version back in 1936," he rasped between rehearsals for the Benny show. "It's strictly a dramatic part for 'The Hallmark Hall of Fame.'"

Eddie, puffing on an oversize cigar, was the picture of affluence.

He was decked out in Ivy League duds from head to toe. His corduroy cap had a belt in the back, matching his corduroy trousers, also belted. He wore a striped sports shirt and a pair of suede loafers.

Gold-Plated Frog

"Sometimes people ask me why I don't have the frog in my throat operated on," he said with a white-toothed grin.

"Shucks, man, that's a gold-plated frog. I'd be out of business if I ever got it fixed. And when I'm playing serious parts it doesn't get laughs. For which I'm thankful.

"Guess I'm like all comedians, though, wanting to play the tragedian. Not many offers come along for dramatic roles. But I get plenty of other offers for guest shots, and Mr. Benny lets me do whatever I want.

"I've been with him now for 20 years," he added. "It's been a long trial period, but it might work out to be a steady job."

Eddie says he wants to straighten out the fiction that he landed his berth with Benny while he was a porter on a trans-continental train.

Rochester (Eddie Anderson)

Never Been Porter

"That was the theme of my first show with him," Eddie explained. "Then the story came out that it was based on the truth. I've never been a railroad porter. Been in show business since I was 17 years old. Got my first role in 'Shuffle Along' in 1923.

"Then I was a song and dance man working mostly in vaudeville with my brother Cornelius. We were billed as the Anderson Brothers. Corny mostly plays bit parts on the Amos and Andy show now.

"In 1937 Mr. Benny signed me for his Easter radio show. It worked out so well that he decided to keep me around—for laughs."

Asked if Benny's TV personality bears any resemblance to the man, Eddie grinned broadly. "I should say not. He is a very kind man.

"He's very generous, too," Eddie concluded. "Especially with advice."

Dorothy Gets Her Big Chance

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — Dorothy Collins, a singer who got the heave-ho last spring from "Your Hit Parade," hopes to prove tonight she found a career when she lost her job.

Miss Collins, aching for a chance to perform on a TV drama show for seven years, gets her first shot this evening when she capers in "Who's Earnest," a musical version of "The Importance of Being Earnest" on CBS-TV's "U. S. Steel Hour."

William Ewald

"I've got one big ambition now and that's to become an actress. I want to—and hope to—become a really good one," said Miss Collins.

"I stayed seven years with 'Your Hit Parade' and nobody in this business should stay in any job that long. It just isn't any good for you. I wanted to do a drama show—I had offers from all of them, 'Studio One,' 'Kraft,' the old 'Philco' — but I just couldn't seem to get up enough ambition. That's what that kind of a job does to you."

Miss Collins, wife of bandleader Raymond Scott who also was turned out of "Your Hit Parade," decided to make the jump out of straight singing this summer.

"When I first heard those rumors that we were going to be fired—and we were fired, let's not kid ourselves—I couldn't believe it. It was a terrible feeling at first.

"But now I can honestly say I'm glad they hired me and I'm glad they fired me. I did 'The Wizard of Oz' in St. Louis this summer and then did 'Showboat' in Kansas City. I got the biggest raves and it was wonderful, really a whole new kind of life opened up.

"I'm going to do a movie based on the life of Boston's Mayor Curley and I've got offers to do two spectaculars."

During rehearsals for "Who's Earnest," Miss Collins commuted each day between Manhattan and Boston where she was performing in a night spot.

"It really has been frantic. All I've been getting is about three hours sleep each day, but I think it'll be worth it," she said. "I've even been studying with a phonetics teacher so I'll get my English accent right for the show."

Queen Will Be Easy to Feed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II is easy to feed compared to her illustrious ancestor, Elizabeth I.

The British Embassy said today it is informing people who will entertain the Queen during her American visit next week that she likes "simple food and is not fussy."

James McManawah, consultant at the Folger Shakespeare Library, said back in the 16th Century if you were invited to even a small formal dinner you could expect to feat upon several soups, fish, half a dozen game birds and two or three roasts.

"Then came the sweets," he said.

McManaway said the Elizabethans went in for eating anything but simple foods.

Fees for the courses will be established by participating schools and will be paid by individuals enrolled. School lunch funds may be used to pay for the course, Mrs. Reinwald said.

New Steel Orders Coming in Slow

NEW YORK (UP)—New orders for steel are coming in slow and steel men are resigning themselves to a gradual fourth quarter pickup rather than the spurt they had anticipated, Iron Age said today.

The national metalworking magazine said the next two weeks will give a clue to what's in store for the rest of this year.

"By that time the mills expect the auto makers to indicate whether they are going to step up their buying or continue to hold back," it said.

Iron Age said that if automotive buying of steel comes to life, other steel users "will have to take another look at their steel inventories and hop on the bandwagon."

Noting that steel inventories in the auto industry are almost on a "hand-to-mouth" basis, the publication said it wouldn't take much of a jump in new orders to double delivery times.

It said several steel salesmen have conceded that despite their disappointment over the rate of new orders, business is at least equal to a year ago and in some cases better.

Iron Age cited recent statistics issued by the American Iron & Steel Institute showing shipments of finished steel for the first eight months at a new record high of more than 56 million tons.

Iron Age said "despite the slow recovery from the summer lull, there is still enough business to maintain the operating rate at about 83 per cent of capacity."

Others elected Monday were Warren H. Spencer, Wellsboro, vice chairman; Col. Hubert E Thornber, Harrisburg, secretary; George N. Boughter, Bellefonte, treasurer; J. Edward Hoff, York, personnel secretary; William T Canan, Altoona, publicity chairman, and B. W. Deringer, Hollidaysburg, constitution and by laws chairman.

Russia Claiming Atomic Locomotive Development Also

WASHINGTON (UP)—Russia is expected to follow up its earth satellite with announcement soon of an atomic railway locomotive and the harnessing of solar energy to generate electricity.

Soviet scientists have clearly indicated they are applying new technology to industry and are not reserving it solely for their military program or "pure science." The announcements could startle industrial nations of the free world. But they also could be aimed at quieting discontent with the low standard of living at home.

Western observers believe the new revelations may come at the 40th anniversary celebration of the Bolshevik Revolution Nov. 7.

Fragmentary reports translated from Moscow publications have been filtering into Washington for several weeks concerning Russian discoveries of economic significance. But they attracted little attention until the Soviet satellite compelled a general reappraisal of the current Russian technology.

United States officials believe Soviet political leaders are putting scientific achievements into the full limelight of propaganda, in order to offset dissatisfaction of the Communist nations over the shortage of consumers goods and low standard of living.

They note people in Communist countries have become increasingly conscious of the importance of American "applied science" leading to mass production for the general welfare of the entire population.

State Blamed For Delay in School Subsidies

HARRISBURG (UP) — State Auditor General Charles C. Smith today blamed the Public Instruction Department for a delay in the payment of 50 million dollars in state subsidies to fourth-class school districts.

Smith, replying to recent criticism of his department from Commonwealth Secretary James A. Finnegan, charged the applications and voucher transmittals from the Public Instruction Department came to his office "in slipshod fashion" from Aug. 1 until Oct. 4.

The auditor general also said in a letter to Finnegan the law specifies payments shall be made to fourth-class school districts and to vocational school districts during the months of March and October of each year. He added: "this will be done."
